Demos confident of sweep; GOP hopes to stem tide

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Democrats anticipated a 1974 election sweep today that would tighten their hold on Congress and the nation's state houses. Republicans pleaded for a big GOP turnout to stem the tide.

Despite a personal appeal from President Ford for a big turnout in the nation's off-year elections, inclement weather in the Northeast and Northwest and the pall of Watergate could keep as many as 60 per cent of the eligible voters away from the polls.

Although a number of congressional Democrats like Sens. George S. McGovern and Birch Bayh and Rep. Wilbur Mills were being challenged, their party generally basked in the public opinion polls that pointed to a big victory.

In California, Edmund Brown Jr., 36, the son of the former governor, was running against Republican state Controller Houston I. Flournoy for the governorship which Ronald Reagan held for two terms.

A UPI survey indicated Democrats would gain five governorships, five Senate seats and at least 20 seats in the House.

Ford's appeal, although bipartisan, appeared to be based on the fears of GOP strategists that their supporters are so turned off by scandal and a sick economy that many of them will not vote at all.

At stake in the nation's first post-Watergate election were 35 governorships, 34 Senate seats and all 435 House seats. Democrats already dominate the state houses, 32-18, and both houses of Congress, 58-42 and 248-187.

In the state house races, incumbent Democratic Gov. John J. Gilligan of Ohio faced a serious challenge from former GOP Gov. James A. Rhodes; Republican Gov. William G. Milliken of Michigan fought to survive a second challenge from Democrat Sander M. Levin, and Rep. Ella Grasso, a Democrat, was expected to defeat GOP Rep. Robert H. Steele to become the first woman elected governor without trading on the political name of her husband.

Several governors were seeking to sustain their national political hopes, including George Wallace of Alabama, who was expected to be reelected easily; Gov. Dale Bumpers of Arkansas, who was running for the Senate; Rubin Askew of Florida and Gilligan.

Mills, the influential chairman of the House Ways and Means Committee, was challenged by 31-year-old Republican divorcee Judy Petty in a contest colored by the headlines of his relationship with an exstripper.

McGovern's opponent was retired Air Force Lt. Col Thorness, a former POW, and Bayh's was Indianapolis Mayor Richard Luger.

Rain and snow fell as the polls opened in the Northeast. A light snow fell in the upper Great Lakes and gloomy weather was forecast for the Northwest.

Voter turnout has been declining gradually in off-year elections during the last decade and some forcasters felt it might fall below the 43.8 per cent showing of 1970 —possibly as low as 40 per cent.

Driver dies; dad rushes children to safety

Blaze erupts as truck rams home

A 21-year-old Cerritos truck driver was killed and his wife injured Monday night when their tractor-trailer truck rolled through a service station, crashed into a house and exploded in flames at Fourth Street and the San Bernardino Freeway in Ontario.

Police said a brake failure caused the accident — which nearly caused even more tragedy.

Homeowner William Donald Trawsck of 1301 N. Fresno St., heard the thunderous explosion when the truck crashed into his house. He grabbed his two small children, put them under his arms and dashed outside, to safety, just as the bedroom and rear patio burst into flames.

Cerritos truck driver David Ray Rhodes, 21, lay dead in the blazing cab of the tractor-trailer truck as firemen and police rushed to the scene.

When firemen arrived the cab of the truck had nearly disintegrated and sparks from a 12,000-volt high tension line sparked above the burning trailer, leaning against the rear of the Trawsck home. Two huge plastic letters of a 50-foot Texaco sign swayed in the wind above, endangering spectators gathering at the scene.

Mrs. Jenny A. Rhodes, wife of the dead trucker, was rushed to San Antonio Community Hospital by ambulance and given medical treatment.

Mrs. Rhodes told Ontario police investigating the accident that her husband was driving the truck, owned by her father, from Lynwood. She said that her husband had experienced brake trouble in Lynwood, but believed he had it repaired.

Mrs. Rhodes said that they were traveling eastbound on the freeway when her husband started to have further difficulty with the truck brakes. Rhodes, rolling about 60 miles-per-hour, turned down the Fourth Street off-ramp touched the brakes and nothing happened.

Mrs. Rhodes said her husband began yelling, "Oh My God. Oh my God " as he attempted to gear the truck down. She said the truck continued down the ramp, crossed Fourth Street bumping over a curb, rolled into the Texaco Service station parking lot, clipping one of the main supports to the huge sign, crashed through a brick wall and rammed into the rear of the house.

Mrs. Rhodes said she noticed the fuel leaking and burst into flames. Firemen said that Mrs. Rhodes managed to get out of the truck by crawling through the bottom of the truck cab under the wheels. Rhodes apparently was trapped in the wreckage.

When firemen arrived, they began pouring water on the roof of the Trawsck home and flames leaped skyward. Other firemen and police opened up the cargo doors of the trailer in an attempt to find out what the truck was hauling. The front portion of the trailer and cab burned furiously.

Firemen managed to contain the blaze in the house and in portions of the trailer and went to work cutting the hot power lines and unloading cargo. The Ontario snorkle truck crew pulled the two letters of the Texaco sign down to prevent them from falling on other firemen and police.

Tow trucks moved in and pulled the truck and the disintegrated cab away from the home. Mrs. Rhodes' burned body was removed from the rubble.

SPECTACULAR TRUCK CRASH

Firemen man hoses and sweep up debris left in the wake of a spectacular tractor-trailer truck accident Tuesday night that took the life of a Cerritos truck driver and injured his passenger wife at Fourth Street and the San Bernardino Freeway. The truck rolled down the freeway offramp, crashed through a brick wall and into a home before bursting into flames. A man and his two children living in the home managed to escape injury. The cab of the truck disintegrated in flames.

10% early vote in valley

Voters had fair skies today as they trekked to the polls to select county, state and federal officials and to decide on several school district tax overrides.

In a sampling of valley precincts, an average of a 10 per cent turnout of voters was reported by 10 a.m. Election officials had predicted only 65 per cent of the registered voters will cast ballots today.

Five polling places were checked in La Verne and San Dimas where voters will determine a tax override for the Bonita School District.

In San Dimas, 60 of 695 registered voters had voted at the Masonic Temple; 50 of 460 at Gladstone School; and 37 of 398 at the Elstrand School. In La Verne, 28 of 272 registered voters had voted at the Grace Miller School and 84 of 400 at the Hillcrest Homes.

A special annexation issue in Claremont may have boosted interest in the election as 72 of the 400 registered voters had cast ballots. The annexation, involving 46 residents, involves an area on Claremont Heights Drive.

And at the Claremont Chamber of Commerce, 40 of the 517 voters had voted. Precinct workers reported many college students residing in the precinct are in classes. "But we hope the voting will pick up this afternoon."

In Montclair, 56 of the 465 registered voters at Villa Montclair Mobile Home Park had been at the polls during the first three hours.

Voters in Pomona will also decide a school tax override and also select a new school board member. Officials reported 41 of 400 registered voters had cast ballots by 10 a.m. at the Pomona School District office, 27 of 390 at Simmons School, and 56 of 500 at the San Antonio School.

Polls will remain open until 8 p.m.

Kissinger cites plan to avert mass starving

ROME (UPI) — Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger warned today that the world faces the danger of mass starvation and proposed a 25-year plan —including creation of worldwide food reserves —to "free mankind from the scourge of hunger."

He urged the oil-rich nations to help finance it.

Kissinger delivered the keynote address to more than 1,000 delegates from 100 nations at the world food conference —one of his own pet projects which he called to study how to stave off mass starvation in the world.

Kissinger's five-point blueprint against hunger put him in direct conflict with U.S. Agriculture Secretary Earl L. Butz, official head of the American delegation, on the question of who should control the world food stockpile. Butz opposes any foreign control of U.S. food supplies.

Kissinger linked the food crisis to the population explosion and said the two problems should be solved together.

"World population is projected to double by the end of the century," Kissinger said. "It is clear that we must meet the food needs that this entails. But it is equally clear that population cannot continue to indefinitely double every generation."

Kissinger said the world "may have the technical capacity to free mankind from hunger."

He listed a five-point program which called for:

—Increasing food production of the developed nations.

—Accelerating food production of the developing nations.

—Improving distribution of food throughout the world.

—Improving the quality and nutrition of food.

— Creating worldwide reserves against food crises.

Judge hearing case killed by sniper firing through window

WANAQUE, N.J. (UPI) — A municipal judge hearing a juvenile delinquency case Monday night was fatally shot in the back by a sniper who fired a single rifle shot through the courtroom window.

Magistrate Joseph J. Cresente, 71, the father of seven children, was struck in the right shoulder blade and the bullet lodged in his chest.

The 40 spectators attending the regular Monday night court session screamed and dived for cover when the window in the two-story wooden municipal building courtroom was shattered by the slug.

"What was that?" Cresente asked police Capt. Joseph Cisco. Then he slumped forward on the bench.

Cisco, who generally attends the court sessions, ran to the window but saw no one.

Patrolman Dan Hall, who had been stationed outside the courtroom, ran inside when he heard the shot, jumped over the bench and laid Cresente on the floor while an ambulance was called.

Cisco then went to aid the fallen magistrate while a court attendent sent for an ambulance.

"When I pulled Judge Cresente's robes back I saw the blood and I knew that he had been hit badly," Cisco said later.

Cresente was rushed to Chilton Memorial Hospital in nearby Pompton Plains but died at 10:32 p.m., about two hours after he was shot.

Police said witnesses reported seeing a man,carrying a shotgun case leaving the scene in a light-colored car with a dark roof. He was described as being 5 feet, 9 inches tall with a dark complexion, shoulder length hair and wearing a brown jacket and dark pants.

A number of police departments in Passaic County today aided Wanaque's 15-man police force in their search for the suspect. Mayor Frank Longo offered a $1,000 reward to anyone providing information leading to the arrest of the slayer.

Cresente, a part-time lay magistrate, was paid $2,500 a year for his judicial duties.

The judge was conducting a probable cause hearing in a juvenile case when he was shot.

Wanaque is a predominantly blue collar community about 30 miles from New York City. Its 11,000 residents live amid wooded, rolling hills in Passaic County.

Crescente, one of the few remaining lay magistrates in New Jersey, has held the post since World War II. He was the owner of an independent insurance agency and had a law background although he was not an attorney.

The slaying was the first in Wanaque since 1913.

Father of poisoned boy is murder suspect

PASADENA, Tex. (UPI) — The father of an 8-year-old boy fatally poisoned on Halloween night by a candy straw filled with cyanide today was charged with murder and held under $100,000 bond.

Police, who had gone from door to door in a two-block area of this Houston suburb tracing the youth's trick-or-treat path, made the stunning announcement at a hastily called news conference today. They said the father was in custody.

Timothy Mark O'Bryan died late Thursday from eating just one piece of candy. His father, Robert Clark O'Bryan, told police at the time his son had begged to be allowed one treat before going to bed.

"We and the district attorney's office felt there was sufficient evidence at this time for a charge to be filed," police Captain R. E. Rhodes said. "There is no further comment at this time as we are still rounding up loose ends."

Rhodes, sitting by assistant Harris County District Attorney Michael Hinton, refused to say when O'Bryan had been arrested or what led to the arrest, other than that the charges followed an exhaustive investigation.. He read a prepared statement and then refused to answer questions.

The charges, specifically for murder by poison, were filed just before midnight Monday.

Police said four other straws containing candy powder mixed with cyanide granules were found by police in the O'Bryan's neighborhood, but apparently no other youngster had eaten one. Police said the father had taken his children trick-or-treating because of the late hour and light rain.

O'Bryan had told police where they went, and so the investigation focused on that area, a two-block section of the city.

O'Bryan told officers that Timothy, his sister, Elizabeth, 5, and two friends collected candy for a half an hour, and that later in the evening Timothy begged for a piece of candy and was allowed to eat the candy straw.

"Thirty seconds after I left Tim's room, I heard him cry to me, 'Daddy, daddy, my stomach hurts,'" O'Bryan told police.

"He was in the bathroom, convulsing, vomiting and gasping and then he suddenly went limp."

During an interview on Friday, O'Bryan, an optometrist, sobbed and said his son had never had an enemy.

Harris County Medical Examiner Dr. Joseph Jachimczyk said the drug, potassium cyanide, was packed in the top two inches of the 22-inch long "Giant Pixie Sticks."

"It's a very deadly drug," Jachimczyk said. "That's why they use it in the gas chamber."

Pasadena detective David Mulligan said investigators were confused why so few of the children in the area had the straws and why other children did not remember receiving it.

"It's a rather expensive type of candy to be giving out at Halloween," Mulligan said.

Timothy, a third grader at Carpenter Elementary School in suburban Deer Park, was buried Saturday.

Demos have lead in election

The Democrats held a lead in voter registration in five of the valley's seven state and federal districts today as residents cast their ballots for party hopefuls.

In a registration report filed by the Secretary of State's Office, Democrats outnumber Republicans in the 62nd and 65th Assembly districts, the 33rd and 35th Congressional districts and the 22nd Senatorial district.

Republicans hold the edge in the 64th Assembly and the 26th Congressional districts.

But in several districts where neither party has over 50 per cent of the voter registration, the selection of who goes to Washington or Sacramento may depend on the "miscellaneous" and "declined to state" voters. Figures are based on Sept. 12 registration.

All the districts which include all or part of the valley have new boundaries which were carved out last year in reapportionment proceedings. Some legislators had to shift areas.

The districts, candidates, areas represented and voter registration follow:

62nd Assembly. Wiliam Lancster, Republican; Jerry Jordan, Democrat. Includes Claremont, La Verne, San Dimas, Glendora, Covina and West Covina. Democrats, 59,528, 48.3 per cent; Republicans, 55,619, 45.2 per cent; American Independent, 630, .5 per cent; Peace and freedom, 407, .3 per cent; miscellaneous, one per cent; and declined to state, 6,822, 5.5 per cent. Total registration, 95,373.

32nd Senatorial. Ruben Ayala, Democrat; John Marcus, Republican; Ray Clark, American Independent. Includes Pomona, Ontario, Montclair, Chino and other San Bernardino County communities. Schools okay bonuses for long-time workers

Classified employes who have worked for the Walnut Valley School District for eight years or more will be given a long service recognition benefit of $25 a month in addition to their present salaries.

The proposed policy revision plan was approved Monday by the district's board of trustees.

In addition to the $25 bonus per month after the completion of eight years of service, an employe who has completed 13 years with the district will be given an additional $25 benefit. Following the 17th year of employment and again after the 21st year an additional $20 per month shall be added to the benefit then in effect for the employe.

The receipt of the benefits, as specified in the policy, will only be given if satisfactory evaluations on a person's performance for each of the previous three years of employment is received by the district.

In other action the board approved a policy which established rules and regulations for the use of school facilities for non-school purposes.

The board decided that school facilities may be used by the public for the discussion of matters of general or public interest; by any church or religious group organization for the conduct of religious services for temporary periods where it is established that the church or organization has no suitable meeting place; by public agencies in case of emergencies affecting public health and welfare; and for civic center purposes as required by the Education Code.

In addition school facilities may only be used by a group when such use does not interfere with regular school activities.

Girl hospitalized, father held in family argument

An 46-year-old Ontario man accused of kicking and beating his 16-year-old daughter and assaulting an Ontario police officer late Saturday night is scheduled for arraignment in West Valley Municipal Court on charges of attempted murder and assault today.

Jessie Rievez Jauarez of 926 E. Francis Ave., Ontario, was booked in the West End Jail Sunday morning after his daughter Ruby, 16, was rushed to Ontario Community Hospital in serious condition with severe head injuries. According to Ontario police reports, Juarez's daughter came home Saturday night about 11:30. When the girl was inside the home, Juarez accused her of being intoxicated and allegedly struck her with his fist and kicked her in the head several times, police said.

Officers were called to the home to investigate. Officer Frank Brown, in attempting to arrest Juarez in the case, reported that the suspect kicked him in the face. Juarez was finally subdued by officers and placed under arrest.

Miss Juarez was listed in good condition this morning at the Ontario hospital. Officer Brown was given medical treatment for a black eye at the hospital and released.

A SLAUGHTER PROTEST

Minnesota and North Dakota farmers lined up more than 300 cattle, hogs and sheep at a large trench Monday and then shot them to death. The slaughter was staged to protest high farm costs. Here, two unidentified farmers hold a pig as Harold Gollner shoots it. The protest was held in Pillager, Minn.

Passenger, pedestrian hurt in two city traffic mishaps

Two women, one a pedestrian, were injured in separate traffic accidents in Pomona Monday.

Shortly after 11 a.m., Kyoko Ostrom, 36, of 4731 Glen Ivy St., La Verne, suffered a broken pelvis when she was hit by a car as she was crossing Holt Avenue in a pedestrian crosswalk at Park Avenue. She was reported in satisfactory condition today at Pomona Valley Community Hospital.

Police reported that the victim was running across the street, against the light, when she was struck by a car driven by Brenda D. Bliss, 21, of 921 Ericksen Drive, Pomona. The motorist told officers that she didn't see the pedestrian because of a truck stopped at the crosswalk.

Earlier Monday, Virginia L. Colbert, 39, 1196 E. Ninth St., Pomona, suffered a cut forehead when the car she was in hit a curb at Reservoir Street and Mission Boulevard.

Mrs. Colbert was taken to Pomona Valley Community where 40 stitches were used to close the wound. She was released.

The driver, Lyle Mac Colbert, 38, told police the accident occurred when he swerved to avoid a car driving on the wrong side of the street. The other motorist didn't stop, Colbert said.

Man rescues wife, daughter as fire ruins mobile home

County firemen say a Hacienda Heights man rescued his wife and invalid daughter from their burning mobile home Monday afternoon after a flash fire resulted from a home improvement project. Damage is estimated at $31,000.

Capt. Bob Lanford said Fred Pellino, the owner of the mobile home at 900 S. Sixth St., Hacienda Heights, was treated by county paramedics for burns to his left hand sustained while trying to put out the fire.

His wife and daughter, who is in a wheel chair, were not injured.

Pellino told firemen that he was using a flammable glue to install tile behind the kitchen range when the glue ignited. He said the fire quiskly spread to all areas of the mobile home, which is parked in the Wildwood Home Park.

The mobile home was destroyed, firemen said.

Three reappointed to planning commission

Bob Monteith, Paul Eaton and Nicholas Kelch have been reappointed to additional four-year terms on the Montclair Planning Commission.

The City Council reappointed the trio following an executive session at its Monday night meeting. Monteith is a school teacher while Eaton is employed as a construction worker and Kelch owns a steel fabrication firm.

Valley candidates file reports on assets, incomes

Bill McVittie of Chino, the Democratic candidate in the 65th Assembly District, appears to have the most diversified investments among local candidates for state legislative offices.

At the other end of the scale, the two incumbents running for re-election in the valley claim they have no investments in anything worth more than $1,000.

That is the information disclosed by the statements of assets and incomes required of candidates this year.

Both Ruben Ayala, state senator from the 20th District, and William Lancaster, assemblyman from the 49th District, claim they have neither any incomes nor any investments.

Due to redistricting, Ayala is now running for election in the 32nd Senatorial District; Lancaster's new Assembly District is the 62nd.

The disclosure law states that candidates do not have to list their homes as investments and their basic salaries as income. As a result, Ayala lists neither. Lancaster mentions his employment as assemblyman, but then, under the "Income, Loan and Gifts" classification he lists only his debts.

McVittie shows investments in 21 businesses, real estate holdings, stocks and notes. Of those, three — all real estate holdings — indicate an interest of more than $10,000.

He also lists nine sources from which he is receiving income amounting to more than $1,000 a year. These include his private practice as an attorney, his job as city attorney of Chino, returns from loans, and money from real estate and business enterprises.

McVittie's opponent, Republican Pete J. VanderPoel, lists his income solely from VanderPoel Bros. Dairies of which he is an official and in which he has an interest worth more than $10,000.

VanderPoel also shows an interest of more than $10,000 in real estate on Carbon Canyon Road in Chino.

Ayala's opponent, John R. Marcus, a San Bernardino attorney, shows an interest of more than $10,000 in his law practice as well as in liquor stores in El Monte and Lake Arrowhead. He also shows an interest of more than $10,000 in four parcels of real estate.

His income is from his law practice, and his business enterprises.

Lancaster's opponent, Democrat Gerald Jordan, an administrative assistant at Bell and Howell, shows no investments, and lists his income from his job.

In the 64th Assembly District, former Assemblyman William Campbell, running for office again, lists his investments in a consulting firm, William Campbell and Associates of West Covina, as worth less than $10,000. He claims a salary of more than $1,000 from that source.

His Democratic opponent, Charles E. Bauer, a teacher with the Hacienda-La Puente School District, shows no investments other than his home, and no income other than his teaching profession.

School district foresees mounting deficits, calls for public tax support

A discussion Monday by the Chaffey school board of the financial needs of the district soon changed to a discussion of consequences if these needs are not met.

The board had sent invitations to some 50 community members to review financial projections for the next three years and to consider a tax override proposal to be submitted to the voters in March. A proposition to increase the base revenue limit was turned down by the district voters last June.

The district income and expenditure projection presented at the meeting showed an accumulated total deficit by 1977 of $10 million. This was based on a yearly 8 per cent inflation rate.

The deficit next year, if a tax increase is not granted by the voters, was projected at $2,125,340; for 1976-77, $5,603,642 accumulated. And with an additional deficit in 1977-78 of $4,403,818 the $10,007,460 deficit would be reached.

Response from the audience of some 20 community members was immediate. "What are you proposing?" Jerry Westphal of Alta Loma asked. "The district is going to be bankrupt in a year. What are you asking for — what amount do you want?"

Trustee John B. Schnepp replied, "We would like the people of the community who care to be involved to come to us with a recommendation in 30 days. We may be too close to the forest to see the trees."

"Last time the issue lost because the administration said we could not blackmail the community with the truth. We couldn't say 'If this fails you won't have buses, sports'. We didn't publicize the truth so the people didn't understand what would happen. You have to gives a sales talk not a computer printout," Westphal said.

The board and Supt. Allan Smith expressed agreement. "We have to draw up a grocery list of things we would have to remove to survive," Smith stated. But later he added: "But we will not be bankrupt. We would put on some kind of a program, but not the kind of program we have now. We would still have some money coming in to the district."

Bob Haage, chairman of the Certificated Employes' Negotiating Council and a history teacher at Montclair High School, warned those assembled, "The professional staff cannot continue to subsidize the budget of the district if inflation continues. Last year the teachers got a 9 per cent increase while inflation was 11 per cent, so in effect we are subsidizing the district budget this year. We will not continue to do this.

"Let the parents decide if they want the kids underfoot part of the year or if they want another luxury like a new toaster or a new color TV. I suggest we close down the schools and send the kids home. If the parents had to take care of them for a while we'd get the money soon enough."

Several community members suggested a willingness to work for a tax override, stating that the district now has a quality program that they would like to see continued and improved. Board President G. A. Chalfant asked those present to form a committee, together with interested community members who were unable to be present, and meet with the superintendent next week to begin work on a proposal for the voters. Deadline for adopting a resolution setting forth a proposal for the March 4 election is December 13.

Woman, 81, knocked down, purse taken

An 81-year-old woman suffered a broken wrist when she was pushed down and her purse stolen in Claremont Monday night.

Carolyn Bowen Robinsin, of Montclair, was reported in satisfactory condition today in San Antonio Community Hospital, Upland, where she was admitted for treatment.

Police said she and another woman were crossing the Howard Johnson restaurant parking lot at Indian Hill Boulevard and San Jose Avenue when a man sprang from the shadows and grabbed the purse containing $100 in cash. He then fled westbound on San Jose.

The thief was described as white about 5 feet 8 weighing 140 pounds. He had black hair and wore a red sweater and black trousers.

Arsonist is blamed in $4,000 blaze

Pomona firemen say an arsonist set a fire that caused $4,000 damage to a house at 1381 Ballerina Place Monday afternoon.

Capt. Frank Lyons said a flammable material was spread in the family room of the house and ignited. The fire caused heavy smoke damage to the entire house and burned walls in the family room and a back porch.

Firemen said James Donald Crunk, the occupant, was at work at the time the fire was discovered.

The Fire Prevention Bureau is investigating the cause.

Spiritual awareness program scheduled

Joseph Manley will conduct a program on the magic of human spiritual awareness today from 7:30 p.m. to 10 p.m. at 254 Ross Court, Claremont. Body of woman dead a week found

The body of an elderly Claremont woman was discovered Monday morning in her apartment at 653B S. Indian Hill Blvd. and police speculated that she had been dead more than a week.

The victim, Annabel Lehman, 88, was found by police officer George Dynes after neighbors called and said they hadn't seen her in two weeks.

Investigators said the victim died apparently of natural causes, but an autopsy was ordered.

The woman lived alone in the apartment. The body was found lying face down in the dining room.

Serious economic impact seen in coal strike

By United Press International

Government and banking experts say a strike by the nation's coal miners would severely curtail key industries and could put as many as 1 million persons out of work.

"Steel, railroads and electric utilities would be the first sectors to feel the impact but the effects could spread beyond these industries if the strike were to be an extended one," Chase Manhattan bank economists reported Monday.

Albert Rees, head of President Ford's Council on Wages and Stability, said a long strike could have "a very serious impact."

The United Mine Workers union, representing 120,000 miners who produce 70 per cent of the nation's coal, has threatened a national strike on Nov. 12.

A prolonged strike could add 600,000 to 1 million workers to the jobless roles, driving the unemployment rate, now at a three-year high of 6 per cent, to 7 per cent, according to the federal Office of Emergency Preparedness.

The Chase Manhattan economists said the U.S. economy is "particularly ill prepared to withstand a long strike."

The latest available survey of the 1,500 manufacturing plants, excluding steel, that depend on coal for fuel showed only an average 30-day supply, and some plants hold only enough "for a week or two."

Frederick G. Jaicks, chairman of Inland Steel Co. and head of the American Iron and Steel Institute, said a coal strike could "shut down the steel industry overnight."

Major steel producers have less than a 20-day supply of coal on hand and some furnaces would be closed in the second week of a strike, according to industry estimates.

The railroad industry depends on coal hauling for 10 per cent of its total revenue. A one-month strike would force disruptions for electric utilities that depend on coal, especially in the Southeast, where inventories are low.

The impasse in coal negotiations drove prices lower on the New York Stock Exchange Monday. The Dow Jones industrial index of 30 blue chip stocks was off 8.05 points at the close of trading.

Talks break off; coal strike nearly certainty

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Coal talks derailed early today, leaving the nation only a week to brace for a nationwide strike and labor and management confused about how it happened.

The United Mine Workers negotiators walked out of the negotiations early this morning, leaving little doubt there will be a strike by 120,000 miners when the current contract expire at midnight Nov. 12.

Miller said "with this contract proposal they've declared a strike in the coal fields. There's not sufficient time for ratification and the membership will not ratify what they have given us."

Guy Farmer, chief negotiator for the Bituminous Coal Operators Association, said, "That's incredible. I can't conceive that they could say we gave them provocation for a strike. I believe there is a misunderstanding. We gave them an offer that in my opinion has not been exceeded in any negotiations in any major industry in total scope."

"I'm going home and go to bed," Miller said on his way out of the Washington hotel where nogotiations resumed at 9 p.m. Monday night at the urging of William J. Usery Jr., director of the Federal Mediation and Conciliation Service.

When the two sides convened, the management bargaining team presented a complete contract proposal covering both economic and noneconomic issues, including those on which tentative agreement had been reported.

The negotiators had broken off Sunday night with the union charging the company team failed to respond to economic revisions offered Saturday morning.

Farmer said the company's counterproposal included "substantial movement on what we'd made before, which also was substantial."

"We have not received their response and we're still waiting," Farmer said after Miller's group left. "I believe we will receive it and we'll move on from there."

A Nov. 12 strike is a virtual certainty because of the union's "no contract, no work" pattern. The union's cumbersome ratification procedure, including rank and file secret balloting, requires a week to 10 days to complete.

END OF THE CAMPAIGN

Edmund G. Brown Jr., Democratic candidate for California governor, winds up his campaign after a day of barnstorming the state with a rally at the Hollywood - Burbank Airport.

Flournoy casts Republican vote

BYROBERT DASEIERL
P-B Staff Writer

Looking characteristically relaxed and confident, gubernatorial candidate Houston I. Flournoy cast his ballot this morning at the polling place in the Mountain View Elementary School in Claremont.

"I think we're going to win," Flournoy said before voting, asserting that the trend of the last few weeks has been in his favor.

Flournoy, said that he will play golf in Long Beach until mid-afternoon, then he will go to the Century Plaza Hotel in Los Angeles to await the returns.

Surrounded by television, radio, and newspaper reporters after he emerged from the school, Flournoy noted that his horoscope for the day indicates that: "The world is mine tonight."

Flournoy worked quickly through his ballot then waited with a show of some impatience for his wife, Marjorie, who lingered in the booth next to his. As television cameras whirred and flashbulbs snapped, the Republican candidate shifted from one foot to the other and gazed at the ceiling.

After the Flournoy's ballots had been deposited in the ballot box, the candidate and his wife stopped to chat with E. Wilson Lyon and Mrs. Lyon. It was Lyon who, in 1957, as president of Pomona College, appointed Flournoy to the faculty of the college in Claremont.

Speaking to a cluster of microphones after he voted, Flournoy said that he did not think that a predicted Democratic trend in the country would extend to California.

"In California's we're blessed by the fact that the voters are independent," Flournoy said.

He said that he had completed his entire ballot, voting against the controversial state Proposition 17, which would include parts of the Stanislaus River in the California Wild and Scenic Rivers Act, and for county Proposition A, which would provide mass transit in Los Angeles County.

Flournoy revealed that he had voted for all of the Republican candidates.

Reviewing his campaign since the June primary, the state controller opined: "I think we did about everything we wanted to do."

He said he regretted only that he had been unable to raise enough money early in the campaign.

While he stood in front of the school polling place, Flournoy spent several minutes signing autographs for about 60 fifth-graders at Mountain View School who were let out of class to see him.

PREDICTS UPSET

Houston Flournoy, Republican candidate for governor, and his wife, Marjorie, stride toward the ballot box in Claremont's Mountain View School this morning.

City didn't take stand on transit plan, Lepire told

Claremont Mayor Bertye Smith appeared before the Pomona City Council Monday night to lodge a protest with Pomona Mayor Ray Lepire over an advertisement in the Progress-Bulletin Monday in opposition to Proposition A.

The advertisement, said Mrs. Smith, incorrectly listed the Claremont City Council as being opposed to the proposition which would raise the sales tax one cent for rapid transit.

The advertisement was placed by the Los Angeles County Mayors' Committee Against Proposition A, which is headed by Lepire.

Mrs. Smith said that at no time had the Claremont council taken an official position on the measure.

Claremont City Councilwoman Claire MacDonald also protested the advertisement.

Lepire told Mrs. Smith and Mrs. MacDonald that he had not prepared the advertisement and would look into the matter.

Israelis land in Lebanon town, kidnap mayor, son

By United Press International

A helicopter-borne Israeli force entered a south Lebanon border village early today and kidnaped the local mayor and his son after blowing up their home, Arab newsmen in the region said.

The Israeli force landed near the village of Majdal Zoun, north of Nakoura and some seven miles from the Israeli border shortly after midnight, they said.

The Israelis surrounded the village, searched Mayor Aref Salman's house, blew up the one-story building and kidnaped Salman and his son Ali before withdrawing, the newsmen said.

The Israeli military command did not mention helicopters but said Israeli troops blew up a house used by Palestinian guerrillas and returned with the two men. It said the two were undergoing questioning as suspected guerrilla collaborators.

The flare up in military activity against the Palestinians came as Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger prepared to return to the Middle East tonight to try to pick up where he left off. He flies first to Cairo from Rome where he discussed Jerusalem and the Middle East with Pope Paul VI. He visits Saudi Arabia and Jordan Wednesday and Syria and Israel Thursday. He was expected to discuss the effects of the Arab summit on peace in the Middle East.

Prime Minister Yitzhak Rabin prepared the Israeli government's response to the Arab summit conference at Rabat which charged the Palestine Liberation Organization with responsibility for setting up a Palestinian state on any area of the West Bank of Jordan given up by Israel.

Rabin said Monday that Israel still has not ruled out negotiations with Jordan's King Hussein over Israel's possible return of the occupied West Bank region.

But King Hussein, in an interview with the New York Times, said Jordan would rewrite its constitution soon and reorganize the cabinet and parliament to remove representatives of the Palestinians living in the Israeli-occupied West Bank.

He said Jordan will give Palestinians living in the part of Jordan east of the Jordan River the choice of Jordanian or Palestinian citizenship. The king described the planned changes as the minimum necessary to give meaning to the decision by the Rabat summit conference last week to name the PLO as the sole representative of the Palestinian people.

"The situation has altered very basically," Hussein said. "A new reality exists and Jordan must adjust to it. The West Bank is no longer Jordan, and we have no place in the negotiations over its future."

Kidnaper caught after holding victim and asking $5,000

GLENDALE, Calif. (UPI) — A 33-year-old escapee from a Tennessee jail was arrested here after he abducted a woman employe from her Hollywood office and held her for more than an hour, demanding $5,000 for her life.

Arrested was Larry David Walden, who was charged with suspicion of kidnaping for ransom.

Police said Kathleen Harris, 24 an employe of a detective agency, was abducted in her own car and forced to make two phone calls to a friend for money.

The phone calls were traced to a hamburger stand here, where Mrs. Harris and Walden were found by authorities.

Nixon on his feet for the first time

LONG BEACH, Calif. (UPI) — Former president Richard Nixon Monday took his first steps since his close brush with death almost a week ago.

Doctors said the few assisted steps around the hospital room were an indication of gradual improvement from Nixon's lapse into shock after the operation to implant a clip to block a blood clot from moving from his leg to his lungs.

Dr. John Lungren, Nixon's personal physician, said there was still some danger of complications arising, but the former president's condition was being carefully monitored.

Nixon was encouraged to cough and breathe deeply to help break up a deposit of fluid in his lungs.

The lung congestion is common in patients who have to lie on their backs for a long time after an operation, and could lead to pneumonia.

Hospital spokesman Norm Nager said, however, that the 61-year-old Nixon was not considered threatened by pneumonia although "it is one of the considerations that must be taken into account."

Julie Nixon Eisenhower was back in Washington today after spending several days at her father's bedsode.

A White House aide said that according to reports from Memorial Hospital Medical Center, Nixon had three meals Monday, has lost the hoarseness in his voice and "is in much better shape — cussing out everybody."

Mrs. Eisenhower flew back to Washington Monday night on a commercial airliner with Nixon's personal secretary, Rose Mary Woods.

The former president was reportedly telling his family and staff that he does not want to spend another week in the hospital. His doctors want to treat him in the hospital for at least another 10 days or two weeks.

Nixon's other daughter Tricia Cox stayed in California to be with her mother, Pat. Both were making daily visits to the hospital. Mrs. Cox was expected to return to her New York home later this week.

Millions in Greek, Roman money recovered

Five arrested in theft of ancient coins

PROVIDENCE, R.I. (UPI) — Five persons were arrested early today in connection with the theft of millions of dollars worth of ancient Greek and Roman coins from Harvard University's Fogg Museum last December.

Daniel Steiner, Harvard's general counsel, said the recovered coins made up about 40 per cent of the 5,650 coins, dating from the 7th century B.C. to the 4th century A.D., taken in the Dec. 2, 1973 robbery.

"There is no way of telling the value of the (recovered) coins at this time. They have to be inventoried and checked one by one. That's going to take some time," Steiner said.

Steiner said the value of the collection was "not as high as originally estimated. But it was several million dollars."

U.S. Attorney Lincoln C. Almond announced the arrests and said the coins were recovered early today "from a wooded area" outside of Lincoln, R.I. He said representatives of the Fogg Museum were to take an inventory.

The five persons arrested, including two women, were charged with federal violations of taking stolen property across state lines. Almond said several other persons were being sought in connection with the theft.

WORLD NEWS BRIEFS

Grand Canyon 'wonder' ful

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Which U.S. natural wonder is best of all? When you put it to a vote — and someone just has — it's the Grand Canyon by a landslide.

"Arizona's Grand Canyon easily tops the list of 'Seven Natural Wonders of the USA', selected in a nationwide poll," the Commerce Department said recently.

Dig for mammoth at Utah apartment

SANDY, Utah (UPI) — Archeologists begin digging in the backyard of an apartment building today for what they hope is the remains of a hairy mammoth that roamed North American thousands of years ago.

The building's manager, Ron Griffin, discovered a three foot long bone, thought to be part of a leg, while digging a drainage ditch recently.

Brigham Young University archeologists visited the yard during the weekend and said the bone appeared to belong to a now extinct species of elephant which stood 13 feet high and was covered with wooly hair.

Chappaquiddick

BOSTON (UPI) — Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, D-Mass., criticized the Boston Globe Sunday for relying on unidentified sources in a series of articles on his involvement in the 1969 death of a young woman at Chappaquiddick.

Kennedy, in a letter to the newspaper published in its Sunday edition, said the Globe used the "unnamed sources" to relate "grossly unfair," allegations relating to his involvement in the death of Mary Jo Kopechne.

"These charges are ugly, untrue and grossly unfair," he said.

Kangaroo sighted far from Chicago

PLANO, Ill. (UPI) — The elusive kangaroo that fought off Chicago police three weeks ago may have hopped some 50 miles west to Plano, where kangaroo sightings were reported during the weekend.

The kangaroo first surfaced Oct. 16 in a residential neighborhood on Chicago's Northwest Side, kicking its way to freedom after being cornered by two police officers.

Although sighted several more times before it eventually disappeared, the kangaroo never was caught.

Friday night, however, a kangaroo —possibly the same one —was spotted near Plano. Patrolman John Orr almost ran it over.

"If I hadn't slowed down, I would have hit him," Orr said. "My cousin was in the car behind me and she just plain ran off the road."

He said the kangaroo hopped into some woods and out of sight.

Saturday night, Jerry Wagner of Plano and two friends said, a kangaroo jumped in front of their car. "We almost ran over it," Wagner said. "It jumped onto the road about 20 feet ahead of us."

Douglas orders newsman released

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Supreme Court Justice William O. Douglas Saturday ordered radio station manager Will Lewis released for the second time from federal prison where he was sent for contempt.

Douglas intervened in the jailing of Lewis for his refusal to hand over to a federal grand jury the original of a message from the so-called "Nw World Liberation Front" received at station KPFK.

Lewis was sent to Terminal Island federal prison by U.S. District Judge A. Andrew Hauk for an indefinite stay Thursday when he declined to give up the communication, claiming protection of California's "shield law." Under this law newsmen are not required to reveal their sources.

People in today's news

No confidence

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind. (UPI) — Elliot Richardson, who resigned as attorney general last year rather than fire Special Watergate Prosecutor Archibald Cox, says a lack of public confidence in government is a "prescription for tragedy."

"Many of our problems, including the problems of the economy, are problems of confidence," he said. "Confidence ... is a fragile structure, easily damaged and not easily restored.

"The danger we face now is the danger that altogether too many people have come to the conclusion that all politicians are crooks and you can't believe anyone who holds public office," he told the Economic Club of Indianapolis. "That, of course, is a prescription for tragedy."

Calley appeal

NEW ORLEANS (UPI) — Former Army Lt. William Calley, in prison indefinitely by order of Chief Judge John R. Brown of the 5th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals, Monday said he does not want Brown to consider an appeal of his case.

A U.S. District Court reversed Calley's conviction on charges of murdering 22 South Vietnamese civilians and ordered him released from prison, but the Army appealed that decision and Brown signed an order Sept. 26 keeping Calley in prison pending a final settlment of the case.

J. Houston Gordon, Calley's chief attorney, said that Brown disposed of one Calley appeal in an earlier hearing without fully reviewing all the available evidence, that Brown's former law clerk was counsel for the Army against Calley, and that Brown's original order keeping Calley in jail was only to have lasted 72 hours instead of indefinitely.

She'll stay home

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Betty Ford made it official Monday —she will not accompany the President to Japan late next week.

The White House said previously that Mrs. Ford, who is still convalescing from breast cancer surgery, probably would not make the Asian tour, but no definite decision had been announced.

"Somebody has to mind the store, she told reporters with a smile Monday during a news briefing in which she introduced her new press secretary, Sheila Rabb Weidenfeld.

Mrs. Ford appeared much thinner than before her surgery last Sept. 28, but she told reporters, "I feel just fine.'

Stories pirated

BERKELEY, Calif. (UPI) — An attorney for author J.D. Salinger said Monday that authorities were looking in the area east of San Francisco Bay for a man who dug up old copies of Salinger's early short stories and published them in two volumes without permission.

Investigators have already located "an East Bay reproduction firm" that apparently turned out a first edition of the unauthorized collection of short stories, according to Neil L. Shapiro, an attorney for Salinger.

Salinger, 55, who lives in New Hampshire, wrote the bestselling "Catcher in the Rye" in 1951 and has not published a sanctioned new work since 1963.

The pirated works, called "The Complete Uncollected Short Stories of J.D. Salinger," consists of 18 stories written by Salinger in his early 20s.

"Mr. Salinger is very distressed," said Shapiro.

Hunters find part of bank robbery loot

SEATTLE, Wash. (UPI) — Part of several hundred thousand dollars taken from a Woodland, Wash., bank in a burglary last May has been found by hunters, the FBI said Monday.

The FBI said bills of small denomination and travelers checks were found Sunday on a road near Easton about a mile from Interstate 90.

Brian Nielson, 26, and John Smith, 28, both of North Bend, notified authorities after their hunting dog sniffed out the dampened bills and checks scattered in a five-foot area.

Officers found cash boxes and money bags about 20 yards deeper into the woods.

The money was found about 350 yards down a side road from where Carl Jett Jr., a patrol sergeant of the Seattle Police Department, was found shot to death in his car Saturday.

Officials said they had no indication of a connection between the two incidents.

An autopsy showed Jett died from a bullet wound in the abdomen. Officers said the car had seven bullet holes, apparently all from shots fired inside the vehicle.

Inflation box score

By MIKE FEINSILBER

WASHINGTON (UPI) — All the major economic statistics point to a United States tortured by inflation and recession.

These statistics are issued separately. Putting them together helps show a full picture of how the economy is progressing.

For that reason UPI presents a box score of the latest economic indicators:

Prices:

The Consumer Price Index increased in September by 1.2 per cent. If sustained, this would translate into an annual increase in consumer prices of 14.4 per cent. In the first nine months of this year, prices rose more than they did in all of last year.

Inflation:

Measured by a broad gauge —called the GNP "deflator," a measurement preferred by economists —inflation's pace was at an annual rate of 11.5 per cent during the July-September period of 1974.

Wholesale prices:

A partial harbinger of things to come, wholesale prices rose by one-tenth of 1 per cent in September, the smallest increase in 11 months and equivalent to a 1.2 per cent annual rate. This was well below the 3.7 per cent annual rate recorded in August.

Unemployment:

Joblessness rose to 6 per cent in October, the highest in three years. The number of unemployed persons looking for work reached 5.5 million out of a civilian work force of 92 million. In October of 1973, unemployment was 4.6 per cent.

Output:

The nation's "real" Gross National Product, a measure of the total output of goods and services adjusted to eliminate the distortions of inflation, declined in the third quarter of 1974 at an annual rate of 2.9 per cent. This was the third consecutive drop. One common definition of recession is a decline for two consecutive quarters in GNP.

Industrial output:

Production of U.S. industries fell at an annual rate of three-tenths of 1 per cent in the third quarter. This compares with a rise of 1.9 per cent in the second quarter and a decline in the first quarter of 6.6 per cent.

Productivity:

Worker productivity —output per hour of work —fell at an annual rate of 3 per cent in the third quarter. This helped boost unit labor costs at an annual rate of 13.9 per cent. Productivity often declines at the start of a recession; there is not enough work to keep employes occupied full time, but the drop in demand is not yet sharp enough to justify layoffs.

Pay:

"Real" hourly pay —adjusted to wring out inflation —fell at an annual rate of 2.3 per cent in the third quarter.

Factory pay:

Average hourly pay of factory workers rose in September to $4.51 from $4.43 in August.

Future wages:

In major labor contracts signed in the third quarter, wage increases averaged 11.3 per cent a year, up from 10 per cent in the previous quarter.

Retail sales:

They fell in September, 1.3 per cent below August.

Profits:

A Wall Street Journal tabulation shows a 29.6 per cent increase in profits during the third quarter over the same period a year ago.

The future:

The Commerce Department's composite index of leading economic indicators —a barometer of where the economy is likely to go —suffered a 2.5 per cent decline in September, its sharpest monthly drop in more than 23 years.

Simple toys found at home

Children are often more pleased with a simple toy adapted from something you already owned than by elaborate, expensive items.

Look around the house for eye-catching colors and appealing designs, but don't neglect the safety aspect. Good play-things can often be found in the kitchen — wooden spoons, squishy plastic pan cleaners, plastic measuring spoons on a secure ring, and pots that can be beaten upon for satisfying sound effects.

Slow driving really saves

One of the best ways to reduce gasoline consumption is still by driving more slowly. A steady speed of 50 m.p.h. instead of 70 can save four miles per gallon in the average car.

Quick starts and slamming on the brakes at traffic lights eat gasoline and burn out brakes. Jackrabbit starts require about twice as much gasoline as smooth starts.

For the birds

Charge turkey gouging

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — Warning the public against "eating crow," a Ralph Nader affiliated consumer group today said processors are artificially inflating the price of turkeys as the Thanksgiving season approaches.

"In the past two weeks wholesale prices of turkeys have increased 20 per cent," said California Citizen Action Groups spokesman Roy Alper. "Wholesale prices have climbed rapidly without any cost justification."

Alper, who refused to specifically name companies which are manipulating prices, urged the turkey-buying public not to pay more than 49 cents a pound for Thanksgiving hens or 45 cents a pound for toms. He said if the price is not right "buy beef or pork for holiday use."

The group, made up of consumer activists, took part in a statewide meat boycott a year and a half ago and has led the fight for the reduction of milk prices in California.

The group said just before Thanksgiving last year the California turkey industry attempted a "massive hoax" on consumers when it distributed "fraud at market information" in an effort to drive turkey prices up to $1.10 a pound.

"The turkey industry is beginning another market fraud on consumers this year, Alper said. "Wholesale prices which were stable at 42 cents to 43 cents in August, September, and October have escalated to 50 cents per pound."

The group said turkeys are in abundance this year with surplus birds being held in cold storage. Cold storage poundage nationally, according to the group, was 52. million pounds in September compared to 354 million pounds in 1973.

Alper, pointing out that 54 per cent of all turkeys are owned by processors but contracted to farmers for feeding, said there is nearly a 100 per cent markup for birds between the producer and retail level.

The Inflation Fighter

Fireplaces wasting heat

There's nothing like a fireplace for atmosphere, but most of them aren't really assets to your heating bill. Unless, it has a special duct system designed to spread the heat around, a fireplace really wastes heat. Most of the heat the fire provides, plus large amounts of air already warmed by your home's heating system, is drawn up the chimney.

Cut your losses by closing the damper when you're not using the fireplace, and avoid using it during extremely cold weather.

You can have similar atmosphere without a loss of heat by turning down the lights and using candles occasionally.

Cold water washing

You can cut down on energy use by washing clothing in cold water, but will you suffer in how clean your clothes look?

Probably not, according to recent tests by Consumers Union. The temperature of the water made little difference in how well stains and soil were removed, or in how clean the laundry looked.

What did make a difference was the formula of the detergent used. Detergents with sodium carbonate "builders" (the water softening and cleansing agent in a detergent) were, under almost all conditions, more effective than any other formula.

Also, general-use sodium carbonate detergents tested outperformed those detergents specifically designed for use in cold water.

Appliance size and energy

Remember that the size of an appliance is no indication of the amount of energy it consumes. But using small kitchen appliances can save energy in preparation of small meals. Try to keep portable cooking appliances out of drafts which reduce their efficiency.

Toasters, waffles, irons, electric grills and skillets, bean pots, fondues, popcorn poppers, electric coffee pots and bottle warmers usually require less energy than a stove when used correctly.

Many portable appliances can double as serving dishes, which cuts down on the number of dishes to be washed.

Inimitable ink

Greek ink was invented by Thomas Sterry Hunt, Professor of chemistry at McGill University. This ink, immune to photographic imitation, was first used in 1862 in American currency or "greenbacks."

Cyanide-laced candy

Halloween poisoning hits Texas suburb hard

PASADENA, Tex. (UPI) — Phone calls to the police are beginning to slow down now, and those who do call are just intently interested, not angry.

"They want to know if an arrest has been made yet," said a night dispatcher Sunday. "I've only gotten one really irate call tonight. Most others just want to know if we got anybody yet. And if his name will be published when we get him."

"But most people ... well ... I mean ... I don't think they want a lynching."

Timothy Mark O'Bryan, an 8-year-old boy killed Halloween night by cyanide-laced candy, is the reason for the calls. He is also the reason city detectives are concentrating on a grassy, two-block area in a manicured, upper-middle class neighborhood.

"We have every hope this will be successful," said detective Larry Turnipseed. "Everybody's putting everything they've got into this case."

The cyanide was found in candy straws given to O'Bryan and other costumed youngsters Halloween night.

Four other straws containing cyanide granules were located in the neighborhood, but apparently none of the other youngsters ate the candy.

"There is no question it came from those two streets," Capt. R.E. Rhodes said. "We are talking to everyone."

Timothy died Thursday night after his father agreed to let him eat one piece of candy before going to sleep. He was buried Saturday.

The weather had been rainy so Timothy, accompanied by his younger sister, his father, two friends and their father, had collected candy for only half an hour.

"Thirty seconds after I left Tim's room, I heard him cry to me, 'Daddy, daddy, my stomach hurts,'" Ronald O'Bryan said.

"He was in the bathroom, convulsing, vomiting and gasping and then suddenly he went limp."

Timothy died in the Pasadena Hospital about three hours later.

Several persons living in the neighborhood said the traditional Halloween activities were over for their children because of the incident.

"My kids will never go trick-or-treating again," Linda Smedly said. "I can't believe it would happen in a nice neighborhood like this one."

Cuban says

Kissinger target of assassins

NEW YORK (UPI) — A former refugee leader who returned to Havana says anti-Castro forces plan to assassinate Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger and American congressmen to block U.S. rapprochement with Cuba.

Carlos Rivero Collado said in Havana the anti-Castro movement in the United States also wants to kill American congressmen and the Costa Rican foreign minister.

Radio Havana broadcast his remarks in a transmission monitored in New York.

Rivero returned to Havana from Miami last week because he said he was disillusioned with the anti-Castro cause and believed the government of Premier Fidel Castro was invincible.

No reprisals were apparently taken against Rivero, who founded the anti-Castro Rosa Blanca (white rose) organization in Miami and took part in the abortive Bay of Pigs invasion in 1961.

Rivero said anti-Castro groups in the United States are "ready to engage in terrorism —ready to strike against diplomats, embassies of any country that is friendly to Cuba."

He accused the anti-Castro groups of plotting against Kissinner and Costa Rican Foreign Minister Gonzalo Facio, but he gave no details.

Facio was expected to call at Friday's Quito, Ecuador, meeting of the Organization of American States for an end to the hemispheric blockade against the Communist island.

"They want to assassinate Kissinger and Facio but they have not yet set a time to do it," Rivero said.

He said "exile terrorists" want to kill the two diplomats because "they are in favor of ending the blockade and reestablishing relations with Cuba.

"These fascist groups also are planning to kill several members of Congress that are in favor of re-establishing diplomatic relations with Cuba," Rivero said.

He refused the name the congressmen but Sens. Jacob K. Javits, R-N.Y., and Claiborne Pell, D-R.I., traveled to Cuba in September to discuss with Castro the possibility of resuming relations.

Rivero said "all the activities of the many terrorists groups are supported by the Chilean government" but he gave no details of the alleged link with the rightist military junta in Santiago.

Assemblyman to settle suit

NORWALK (UPI) — Assemblyman Joe Gonsalves, D-Norwalk, decided recently to settle a People's Lobby lawsuit against him out of court and agreed to file affidavits with the secretary of state disclosing all his personal assets.

The suit alleged that Gonsalves violated the state conflict-of-interest reporting law when he failed to disclose a 10 per cent interest in a defunct radio station.

Mrs. Gus Grissom

Tells why she sued N. American

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The widow of astronaut Virgil "Gus" Grissom says in a book published Monday that she broke a code of silence when she sued the builder of the Appollo I in which her husband died.

Grissom, Edward H. White and Roger B. Chaffee died when a flash fire swept their cabin during a ground test a month before their scheduled launch on the first manned test of the moon ship.

A review board said the fire probably was caused by a spark from a damaged wire. The pure pressurized oxygen environment allowed the flames to engulf the cabin rapidly.

Betty Grissom says in "Starfell," written jointly with Henry Still, that she considered filing a damage suit after the 1967 spacecraft fire. But she said she continued to live by the "code of togethersville" until 1971.

"That code decreed —by the force of peer opinion —that you should accept your loss in silence, bear up, speak no evil, don't rock the boat, be noble and sacrifice your life to the good of government and military," the book says.

Mrs. Grissom sued North American Aviation, now part of the Rockwell Corp., and the suit was later settled out of court for $350,000.

After expenses and attorney fees, Mrs. Grissom said, her two sons, Mark and Scott, each received $75,000 and she got $60,000. The other two widows, who refused to join Mrs. Grissom in the suit, later received similar amounts.

Mrs. Grissor said she sued after the remaining astronauts signed a contract to share proceeds from a documentary film. The practice up to then was for all the spacemen and the widows of those killed in the program to share money received from such contracts.

She also received money from the documentary contract, but was informed in late 1970 that the astronauts had made a new agreement under which widows would cease to benefit as soon as their youngest child reached the age of 18. For Mrs. Grissom, that was 13 months away.

"I realized right then that the astronauts didn't give a damn about the widows," she said.

Butcher kills himself after crime spree

TIBURON (UPI) — To avoid arrest on auto theft and robbery charges, a San Francisco butcher shot himself to death, police said Wednesday.

Patrolman Mike Dory of Belvedere said Anton Marcel Jr., 30, of San Francisco, shot himself after being chased to a Tiburon parking lot while driving a stolen car.

Dory said he had spotted the car as stolen.

At the parking lot, Dory said Marcel pointed a gun out a car window and declared, "I'm going to kill you or me."

Dory recalled that he pulled his own gun, ordered Marcel to surrender and then saw the butcher fire the fatal bullet. The bullet penetrated Marcel's right temple.

Police said that between Sunday and Tuesday Marcel had stolen three cars and committed two armed robberies.

Judge Stewart lauds press for doing its duty

NEW HAVEN, Conn. (UPI) — U.S. Supreme Court Justice Potter Stewart has praised the nation's press for using its unique constitutional protection to do its duty in the face of criticism.

Referring to the Watergate scandal, Stewart said the press performed "precisely the function it was intended to perform" under the Constitution.

"It seems clear that many more Americans, while appreciating and even applauding the service performed by the press in exposing official wrongdoing at the highest levels of our national government are nonetheless deeply disturbed by what they consider to be the illegitimate power of the organized press in the political structure of our society," Stewart said.

"It is my thesis this morning that, on the contrary, the established American press in the past 10 years, and particularly in the past two years, has performed precisely the function it was intended to perform by those who wrote the 1st Amendment of our Constitution.

"I further submit that this thesis is supported by the relevant decisions of the Supreme Court."

City okays aid to 18 agencies, delays on 7

The Pomona City Council Monday night approved the allocation of approximately $66,000 in general revenue sharing funds to 18 local agencies to provide a variety of social services to Pomona residents.

The council's action was based on a report of the city's Community Life Commission, which recommended 26 agencies for funding totaling $100,000.

At the request of Councilmen Charles Bader and Adrian Wright, seven of the recommended agencies were removed from the list for further consideration and study.

Bader indicated that he would like to review alternative funding sources for the seven groups and determine whether the funding recommended would achieve an effective level of service.

The seven agencies removed from the commission's recommended list were the Mexican-American Opportunities Foundation, Open Choices, Pomona Boys' Club, Safety Council, Council on Aging, YMCA Outreach, YWCA and Upward Bound.

In addition, the council denied funding the city's Office of Community Relations in the recommended amount of $276 on the grounds that such funding would be an improper allocation.

The remaining 18 agencies recommended for funding by the Community Life Commission were approved without change by the council, with those agencies' applications for funds to be processed beginning immediately.

In other business, the council approved an $1,800 supplemental allocation for the payment of school crossing guards in the city.

At the same time, the council approved a staff recommendation asking for the preparation of a report concerning the feasibility of creating crossing guard assessment districts.

Presently, the city expends approximately $50,000 per year for crossing guards from the city's general fund.

The council set Jan. 6, 1975, as the hearing date concerning the proposed creation of an underground utility district running the length of Holt Avenue from Dudley Avenue to Mills Avenue.

Southern California Edison Co. has notified the city that ample funds exist for the project if approved.

A short presentation outlining the city's presentation in the All-American Cities competition was made to the council. Lillian Gomez, who has been selected as the city's spokesman, read the first draft of a 10-minute talk that will be presented in San Diego later this month to the awards' selection committee.

Her remarks were accompanied by a slide presentation centering on the building of Sharkey and Cherrieville Parks.

COMPUTER MATH PROGRAM

Computer helps tailor math to each student

"At Ekstrand School we're into the 21st century," says Principal Berge Minasian when he talks about the San Dimas school's new computer mathematics lab.

The Bonita school district's $20,000 program, funded with federal money, is a computer instruction program.

In a separate room at the school, five computer terminals have been set up. A specific number of minutes each school day working at the computer is spent by 200 children from grades two through five in the Title I program, the federal program for children from lower socio-economic families.

The children were put through introductory lessons which helped acquaint them with the operation of the keyboard and the answering procedures. The student does the actual work on the terminals, the computer asking a problem, the student typing the answer on the terminal keyboard.

Each student began his individualized mathematics course at the level decided upon for him by his teacher. However, once started, the computer adjusted his initial placement, based upon performance.

The questions asked by the computer are not based upon the grade or age of the child but upon the concepts the child has mastered and those he should learn next. The tasks of one student are different from that of another student in the same class.

"This really is individualized instruction," Minasian affirms. The five computer terminals, connected to the central computer in the Los Angeles County School Office in Downey, do all the work automatically. The computer selects the child's ability level, presents lessons to him according to his ability, as indicated by his day-to-day performance, and immediately responds to the child's work.

If the child's response is incorrect the computer immediately corrects the response; if it is right, the machine then proceeds to the next lesson. The computer even recognizes when the child's instruction time is up and prints out "Goodbye——" followed by the child's name.

The computer's greeting and goodbye, calling each child by name, is not the only humanizing touch to the program. Care is being taken, Minasian states "to avoid a program of the cold, impersonal type often connected with the idea of computer instruction. Trained aides are always near the children to offer assistance, encouragement and praise. Aides for the program are Eleanor Ramirez and William Coulter.

Minasian expresses optimism about the program. "The students are fascinated. There is very intensive interaction with the machine so that in 10 minutes they do more than in 30 minutes of more traditional instruction."

He says that the county schools' office predicts that the students in the program will progress from one and a half months to two months in mathematics skills for every month in school. Although it is too early in the school year to tabulate quantitative studies, Minasian thinks the prediction will prove accurate.

Portrait lighting is camera club topic

The Pomona Valley Camera Club will meet Thursday at 7:30 p.m. at the Great Western Savings and Loan Association Pomona Mall West.

Robert Frampton, a photographer from Claremont, will give a demonstration on basic lighting for portraits.

Alarm systems doing job; 4 more schools will get them

The Claremont Unified School District board Monday night approved installation of intrusion alarm systems in four more district schools.

District business manager Charles Abbott explained that such alarm systems already are installed in various schools have been successful.

"We have been able to apprehend persons breaking in," Abbott said. "There have been no subsequent break-ins at those schools."

The board approved the systems for schools where break-ins can be reduced and property protected most effectively.

Superintendent R. S. Kirkendall explained that the aniti-burglar system is so sophisticated that it can detect a rock being thrown.

Abbott told the audience that the district "gets better mileage out of not saying where the alarms are installed."

In other matters, Abbott told the board that he would have ready at the next board meeting a list of proposed budget cuts and methods of increasing district income for fiscal 1975-76 when the district expects to be confronted with a $1.2 million deficit if it continues the same educational program it is offering this year with a $9 million budget.

The board must decide at its Dec. 2 meeting whether it is going to ask the voters next March for a tax override.

Board President William Anderson presented to Claremont High student Michael Glass a certificate of award for superior performance in writing from a national English teacher organization.

New entry for Police Dept. gets City Council support

The Montclair City Council approved, in concept, Monday night a new entrance to the Police Department off Benito Street with the expansion of the facility, upon the recommendations of City Administrator Laurence Wasserman and Police Chief Ray McLean.

Wasserman commented that the staff had reached "the crossroads" and it was now time for a decision from the City Council to determine the perimeter of expansion to the east. He pointed out that the existing entrance to the quadrangle of the Civic Center off Fremont Avenue would be inadequate with the expanded police facility.

McLean noted that the old entrance causes a ncise problem and traffic congestion in the hallways and is inconvenient for both employes and the public. The old entrance creates a nonfunctional strip between the old and new building sections. The public would also pass jail cells and processing rooms, possibly being exposed to coarse language of prisoners, added the police administrator.

The entrance off Benito would provide an "easier, free flowing traffic pattern in the building and minimize problems unavoidable in the original concept," said McLean.

Wasserman stated that it would also break up the monotony of the concrete block wall on the Benito side of the Civic Center.

Mayor Harold Hayes suggested the use of closed circuit television for security surveillance of the remaining areas of the Civic Center, particularly on the weekends. McLean will further investigate the cost of such surveillance.

The City Council approved an additional 7,000 feet to the police facility at its Oct. 7 meeting. The expansion to the east of the existing department is tentatively scheduled for a July 1975 completion date.

In other actions, the council:

— Agreed to contract with ABC Dismantlers of Pomona for removal of abandoned vehicles from city streets. The wrecking company will pay the City of Montclair $40 minimum for each car removed. The city also eliminated administrative charges for removal of such vehicles.

— Agreed to call for bids for construction of a concrete block wall along the west and south sides of the Montclair High School parking lot on Camulos Avenue. Bids will be accepted on Nov. 25.

— Instructed staff to investigate the possibility of rescheduling the street sweeping so that the streets near the high school will be cleaned following sports events at the new stadium.

City workers' raise or bonus plans tabled

The Upland City Council tabled two proposals Monday evening designed to increase the income of city employes.

Learning that the city has a fund balance approximately $200,000 in excess of the amount estimated last spring, when budget allotments were being made, Councilman Harold Bailin made a motion to grant a 2½ per cent across-the-board pay increase to city employes.

"We have to acknowlege that the wage package we passed last spring did not meet the then cost of living," said Bailin, who asserted that the 7½ per cent pay increase given city employes this year was inadequate.

Bailin proposed to make the salary increase effective in December of this year.

But Councilwoman Ina Petokas opposed the salary increase, maintaining that it would be inflationary and that, once granted, the higher salaries would have to be included in all future city budgets.

Instead of allocating the fund balance windfall to a permanent salary increase, Mrs. Petokas offered to give each city employe a bonus of $178.88.

However, City Atty. Donald Maroney warned that Mrs. Petokas' suggestion might raise technical difficulties. The giving of bonuses to public employes is restricted by law, Maroney pointed out.

The members of the council decided that Maroney should draw up papers for both proposals.

He also will investigate the legality of giving the employes a bonus.

The question of whether to use the unexpected surplus in the fund balance to finance a raise in the salaries of city employes or a bonus to them, or indeed to save the money for some other purpose will be decided at the next council meeting Nov. 18, councilmen indicated.

Tri-City will seek county help for drug abuse work

The Tri-City Mental Health Authority governing board Monday night approved three contracts with Los Angeles County for drug abuse services.

The contracts, which will be presented to the Board of Supervisors Wednesday, will provide funding for local agencies involved in drug abuse treatment.

The Tri-City board also approved subcontracts with the Pomona Community Crisis Center, People's Coalition on Drug Programs, Pomona Open Door, Claremont Our House, and La Verne-San Dimas Open Door.

In other business, the board heard a report from Joe Korpsak, Pomona Assistant City Administrator, concerning a study of Tri-City's current facility at 1149 N. Garey Ave., Pomona, and the possible advantages of relocation.

Korpsak told the board that by early January the study should be completed, including a real estate market survey, possible alternative locations and the potential benefits of consolidating Tri-City, Juvenile Diversion and other projects into one central unit.

City growth, environmental issues raised

Ecologists criticize tract proposal

Environmentalists clashed with a developer in La Verne Monday night over whether the city should permit more growth or maintain its present quality of life.

Richard Lewis, a partner in Lewis Homes of Upland, told the City Council that the city's Commission on Environmental Quality was trying to force him to "turn my houses into Rolls Royces" by its requirements.

He said he was trying to build homes for middle income families but the homes the CEQ and the city staff demanded were the kind "nobody could afford to buy in the present market."

Lewis wants to build 125 homes in the $40,000 to $50,000 bracket northwest of Base Line Road and Emerald Avenue. To do so, he has to clear about 4,000 trees off the citrus grove on the 42-acre tract.

The commission is opposed to the development because of the loss of the trees and loss of open space, and because it belives that the "rapid growth so generated would be detrimental to environmental quality" in the community. The CEQ claims the city already is growing too fast.

But if the council did approve the development, the CEQ asked that a total of 15 conditions be imposed, including a density lower than the general plan calls for, extra thick windows to keep out the noise and to better insulate the homes against heat or cold, removal of the grove in phases, complete insulation, specified landscaping, fencing, roofs and sidewalks to provide an "interesting street image," underground utilities and others.

Lewis raised objections to most of the conditions, contending that some were unworkable, others too expensive and still others impractical.

"If we ask a man to pay $50,000 for a home," he declared, "we think he should have a choice of the type of fence and the type of landscaping he wants. As for the gradual removal of the trees, the whole tract has to be graded and balanced at the same time."

He said he would try to save what trees were possible to save.

"I don't feel we should try to solve the nation's environmental problems on this one tract," he contended. "We're not trying to carve a mountain or block a seaside view."

The council appeared sympathetic to Lewis, but Councilman Frank Johnson noted that "this might be just a forerunner of what we can expect in the future. It seems we are ruling the family with the average income out of owning a home."

The council declined to take a stand, and sent the matter back to the city staff with instructions to try to work out the differences with Lewis and come up with compromises in two weeks.

VAC pioneers to remove blight

The Valley Association of Cities (VAC), composed of the cities of Chino, Claremont, La Verne, Montclair, Ontario, Pomona, San Dimas, Upland, Walnut and West Covina, has enjoyed remarkable success since its inception in June.

As a national pioneer in the area of abandoned homes, VAC has succeeded in a very difficult task — getting the federal bureaucracy off dead center.

In the period between July 10 and Oct. 10, VAC has provided the impetus for the sale of 259 abandoned homes in the member cities, thereby reducing the number of abandoned housing units by 25 per cent. This is three months ahead of VAC's goal of 250 sales.

Basically, VAC has insured that the Department of Housing and Urban Development (HUD) has performed its area management responsibilities in getting these homes onto the market and into private hands.

In the year prior to VAC's formation, HUD was able to place less than 50 homes on the market.

While most of the homes sold by HUD on an "as is" basis have been purchased by investors, the transfer of the homes into private hands allows the cities to assume measurable control over the properties through building and safety codes, and gets the property back onto the tax rolls.

In addition to increasing the sale of abandoned homes, VAC is also working to prevent future abandonments through the institution of a homeowners counseling program.

The blight is far from over, but the Valley Association of Cities has demonstrated the kind of progress that can be achieved when cities join together in a common effort.

The uncharitable effects of inflation

Inflation is having some curious effects besides those not-so-curious effects we all know about.

For example, Americans are not donating as much old clothing, furniture and whatnot to charities as they used to. They're selling it instead, at garage sales and flea markets.

Goodwill Industries reports that its familiar collection boxes are emptier these days. Even worse, many of them are being pilfered. The Salvation Army also reports a decline in donations.

"Garage sales used to be held when people were house-cleaning or moving," says Claude Sheridan of Detroit's Goodwill Industries, as quoted by the Christian Science Monitor. "Now, they're getting to be big business."

To try to counter this trend, organizations which depend upon voluntary contributions are stressing the tax-deductible advantages, says the Monitor.

"If people knew that a tax break from a contribution may be more than the profits at a sale, perhaps they would think twice about holding the sale," suggests Matthew Warren, national public relations director for Goodwill.

Inflation is not only forcing up the cost of living but the cost of dying as well.

According to Francis E. Vanderbur, president of a mortuary company in Denver, the business is being hit by the rising cost of personnel, caskets, urns, burial vaults and even gasoline used in hearses. A funeral that cost $695 a few years ago is now $1,200.

The best way people can beat inflation at the funeral home, says Vanderbur, is to buy as much as possible in advance — casket, headstone, tomb, etc. A sort of pay-now, die-later plan.

In Miami, however, one funeral home is offering a cash-and-carry cremation service for a bargain $137.50. The fee covers the cost of everything. You carry home the ashes in a cardboard container.

Competitors say it's the beginning of a price war reflecting a declining birth rate that is taking the undertaking business with it. "The next thing you know they'll be giving away a turkey with each cremation," complains one mortician.

Well in these inflationary times, every little bit helps.

Faded day

It is too bad, in a way, but what is now called Veteran's Day has faded in its significance. Not because of disinterest in our veterans, but because of the way the day has been altered.

Originally celebrating the end of fighting in World War I, November 11 had both calendar and human significance. World War II, however, dimmed the meaning of Armistice Day, and it became Veterans Day, a sort of second Memorial Day.

Now it's really just a Monday windup for those politically created three-day weekends. Not much of a way to salute those who did their duty for their nation and their fellow men.

No justification for Edison raises

I was most interested in the item in your paper of Oct. 19. The headline was "Edison Co. cites large 1974 profit." I believe it.

My last bill from the Edison Co. was for $98.93. The previous one was for $89 plus. When I protested the previous bill I was told that the Edison Co. raised its rates 30 per cent "depending on where you live" and were going to request a 50 per cent raise. Apparently they got it.

My conversations with various women at the Edison company ranged from the ridiculous to the incredible. One offered to send me a card so I could read my own meter, an invitation I declined since their own men, presumably trained, sometimes have difficulty in this area.

One woman was sympathetic but her solution was that Americans would have to change their mode of living, move in with their married children or vice versa so they could afford electric and other bills.

I finally talked to a supervisor who said he would send out a man to read the meter. The man came and I assumed the reading was correct. Later, I talked to another supervisor to find out why rates varied so from one neighborhood to another. He said the rates in our neighborhood were higher because it is less densely populated — which I find hard to believe — and because it is on a hill which makes installations more costly.

It isn't really much of a hill and electricity was installed some 18 years ago. He also said something about if you use less you were charged more because they need the revenue. That sounded straight out of Alice in Wonderland.

I understand there are to be hearings before the Public Utility Commission to request yet another raise in rates. They will be held in Los Angeles and in San Bernardino on Nov. 6. Since Edison Company's profit was so "huge," I fail to see any justification for further raises.

Anyone dismayed at the amount of their bills, or fearful of future ones, should attend to protest, or write letters if unable to attend. Surely the public should be made aware of what plans are in store and what they can do about it. It has been demonstrated that mere citizens can turn things around if sufficiently aroused. — Eleanor E. Staub, Claremont.

Dr. Timothy Leary sees the light

WASHINGTON — Dr. Timothy Leary, the erstwhile high priest of psychedilics who once urged everyone to "turn on, tune in, drop out" on LSD, has had a dramatic change of heart. It was the Watergate scandal, he told a California grand jury, that made him see the light.

"I think if Watergate hadn't happened, I probably wouldn't be here today," he solemnly swore. Then, in his new role as reformer, he accused his former attorney, George Chula, of smuggling drugs to him in prison.

The Los Angeles attorney has denied the charge. He has also pleaded not guilty to an indictment on different charges.

According to Leary's secret, sealed testimony, he insisted to the grand jury that he wasn't angry at his former lawyer. "He is a very pleasant, jolly person," Leary said. "It would be hard for anyone to be angry at him."

But after watching the Watergate drama unfold, Leary felt a compulsion to tell all. "I feel a certain responsibility for ending what I think is a cover-up," he testified.

He spoke of "two-ply lawyers" who "encourage and sponsor activities which are illegal" and then "defend people with whom they have been collaborating and cooperating."

He added, with a ring of righteousness: "I think that we are at a time now in this country when everybody has to tell the truth."

This was strange testimony coming from the former pied piper of the drug cult, the way-out Harvard psychology professor, who preached the heavens of hallucination and wound up in jail on marijuana charges.

In a spectacular jailbreak allegedly engineered by the Weathermen, Leary escaped from a California prison and fled to Algeria. He later flew to Afghanistan with a jetsetter named Joanna Harcourt-Smith. But he was turned over to U.S. authorities who brought him home under guard.

The repentant Leary told the grand jury that he had broken with his past. "I do not intend to take any illegal drugs," he vowed. Then he launched into a colorful tale of how his attorney twice had slipped him small lumps of hashish to eat.

The first time was in the courthouse. He had become irritated with Chula for prating before the TV cameras and had asked the bailiffs to arrange a room for a private lawyer-client conversation.

"After I blew up and spoke forcefully to him, Mr. Chula reached down and pulled up his pant leg and, out of his stocking, he produced a piece of hashish and he handed it to me," related Leary.

"And what did you do with it?" asked Los Angeles District Attorney Art Koelle.

"I took it and I ate it," said Leary.

"All right," said Koelle, "when you say you put it in your mouth and ate it, did you just chew it up and swallow it, is that how you consumed it?"

"Yes," agreed Leary. "I chewed it. It was too large to swallow."

"Do you recall how it tasted, or how hashish tastes?"

"Yes . . . ," Leary paused. "It is like trying to describe the flavor of chocolate: they don't have words for it. But I would say that it is kind of an acrid, a dark, semibitter resinous, oily taste."

"After consuming it," asked the DA, "did you have any effects from it at all?"

"The effect of the hashish," said Leary, "was to get me over my anger so that I felt euphoric. I felt a feeling of happiness and nothing mattered, and I was no longer angry with Mr. Chula. It is a feeling like a philosophic detachment: it will all be over in a hundred years and no reason to get upset about it."

On the other occasion, Leary was seated across from Chula in the Orange County jail, with a guard watching through a glass window.

"Some time in the first few minutes of the interview," Leary testified, "George Chula handed over a piece of hashish to me . . . " This alarmed me very much because I knew that the guard was sitting in the glass booth observing what was going on. So I kind of froze and I imagine my face must have registered concern.

"And Mr. Chula, who was sitting there, could look over my shoulder and could see the guard booth, said, 'It is all right.' So I put the hashish in my mouth and chewed it and swallowed it."

Timothy Leary, his blonde hair now graying, his Irish smile turning stern, said this was the last time he had touched the vile drug. Reflecting on the past, he said: "It has been kind of a Robin Hood adventure."

RALPH NOVAK

Low-food diet for Americans

With food prices rising as fast as they are, just about everyone is having to change his eating habits. This means that those of us who are not yet quite desperate enough to give up eating altogether are searching for some economical meals to serve.

So here are some selected recipes from the Nouveau Pauvre Cookbook that should be within the budgets of most families — at least for another week or two.

THICK SOUP — A lot of Americans are into this these days. Start by boiling 14 pounds of newspaper clippings of President Ford's speeches on how he is going to battle inflation. Add a grain of salt. Mix in 79 pureed WIN buttons. Add two grains of salt. Combine with 12 old women's magazine photos — in color, preferably — of raw meat. Singe slightly. Just before serving garnish with administration pledges that everything is under control. Add as many grains of salt as you can stand.

SALAD DAZE — Give everyone in the family a crayon and have them draw a picture of a luxury food your family used to be able to afford, something like bread, eggs or milk. Slice the drawing very thin and toss them in a bowl. Do the same with the crayons. Now combine with the grass trimmings you saved the last time you mowed the lawn. (If this is a special occasion, you may want to butcher a family philodendron or cactus to add substance; don't forget to save the roots for soup.) Top with old supermarket cash register receipts. For dressing, try some of that black ink you used to use in figuring your family finances. Naturally, if you have any vegetable oil left around, don't waste it on the salad; try and make gasoline out of it.

REAL STEW — Take 300 feet of newsreel film of farmers killing animals and then burying them to protest low prices. Blend well with 300 feet of TV commercial film of retailers promising to keep prices down. If you have $18 or so, buy a chicken wing and toss it in the pot. Add 39 pounds of pepper and 11 bottles of tabasco sauce; this will keep anyone from eating too much and stretch the stew. Which should remind you to add some rubber pencil erasers for substance. Think about how well you used to eat, then simmer for six hours. Simmer the stew for six hours, too.

BREAD ALONE — Buy a plane ticket to the Soviet Union. Go there and see if you can find some wheat we may have sold the Russians lately. Bring back a few bushels and make some flour. Congratulations, you are about to become a millionaire.

COFFEE FREE — Boil a pot of water. Serve, adding sugar and cream if desired and available. Or drink it white. The advantage of not using coffee is that this drink will not keep you awake or make you jittery. It's just as well that nobody can afford doughnuts anymore, either, though.

HUMBLE PIE — Prepare your crust. If you don't have any, find your nearest government official; he is likely to have a lot of it. Now cover the crust with a plastic bag and breathe into it, muttering optimistic sayings; this is your hot air filling. Add some glue, seal the bag and put it in a high oven. Hope it doesn't boil over into a big mess.

Just in jest

Did you hear about the fellow who is such a stinker that only a politician will shake his hand? — Oh, you did, did you? So now you ask me: "What else is new and boring?" — Well, seeing that you asked, I'll tell you.

Sometimes it's the politicians themselves who are the stinkers. How about that California Assemblyman who recently demonstrated practical politics in action by writing a thank you note to a person who had done him a favor — a note which ended with these words: "Please do not be misled by a bill I am going to introduce which is for political reasons only"?

Sirica's offbeat judicial style

WASHINGTON — Watching Judge John Sirica preside with irascible vigor over the Watergate coverup trial, I was reminded of what Sugar Ray Robinson once said about Randy Turpin's forte as a fighter.

Randy, declared Robinson in 1951—the year he lost and won the middleweight championship from Turpin—does everything wrong, right. That is, Turpin pursued his craft in unorthodox style, yet made it work, at least on his better nights.

On one level, whether these are John Sirica's better days as a jurist will remain for the appellate courts to decide. But if anyone made book on such matters, I'd be willing to bet that during the first three weeks of the Watergate coverup hearings he has raised more professional eyebrows and questions regarding the possibility of reversible error than an orthodox judge would in a full court term.

Nor is that just one rusty lawyer's opinion. I took a poll of several attorneys and other experts on trial law who, like me, have been following the proceedings in Sirica's courtroom in a condition best described as disoriented bewilderment.

Did the judge really say at the outset, or was it our imagination, that he didn't intend to follow the strict rules of evidence if doing so interfered with the quest for T-R-U-T-H? Yes he did, spelling the word out for the jury.

And that was only the beginning. Every day has its surprises as the judge verbally flails, with equal abandon, at prosecutors, the defense, the media, and anyone else who happens to have incurred his wrath during the 12-hour news cycle immediately preceding.

Take last week's imbroglio concerning former special prosecutor Leon Jaworski's recent utterances about the Watergate case. Sirica, during the pretrial period, placed a ban on all participants and their lawyers talking about the case. But Jaworski and his onetime assistant Philip Lacovara, no longer being involved in the proceedings, errantly thought to exercise their First Amendment rights by speaking, as private citizens, on a matter of public interest. Sirica went livid.

"I would hope," the judge told the courtroom audience, "everybody would keep his mouth shut. And that includes Mr. Jaworski, Mr. Lacovara and everybody else.

Everybody else? That has to be as broad and unnecessary a ban against comment on a case as was ever rendered on this side of the Atlantic. After all, with the jury sequestered, its members can't very well be influenced by newspapers they aren't reading and TV-radio reports they aren't hearing. Unless the judge himself brings such matters to their attention.

Indeed, it's not easy to fathom the judicial style of John Sirica. His method of running a courtroom, to paraphrase the military observer who watched the Charge of the Light Brigade, may be magnificent—but it isn't always law. He at times seems the vain, intemperate judicial blunderbuss pictured by his enemies (and he has many in this town) who like to cite his frequency of reversal on appeal.

Yet, despite all this, he was the judge who cracked open the Watergate coverup. Would a more orthodox jurist, given the original Watergate case, have been so stubborn and irascible as not to accept a disposition of the case which the prosecution, and indeed the defendants themselves, seemed satisfied with?

I doubt it. Moreover, I have a theory about Sirica's unorthodoxy on the bench during the current coverup trial.

It comes down to this: A certain centripetal logic has gone out of bringing Mitchell, Haldeman, Ehrlichman, et al, to legal account for alleged crimes which have unallegedly been pardoned elsewhere. Thus Sirica, considering the pardon, has simply determined that whether these particular defendants go to jail is less important than spreading the full Watergate record before the public, strict rules of evidence aside.

Needless to point out, that policy, along with his outbursts concerning the ex-special prosecutor's public statements, aren't likely to improve Sirica's record for being reversed on appeal. This would mean that the presidential subordinates now on trial would go free—just as if they had been pardoned.

Neither this rusty lawyer nor any trial court expert can say, of course, whether that's what Judge Sirica has in mind as he takes his verbal swings from the courtroom floor these days. But if equal justice under the law is the objective, a good case could be made that Unorthodox John, once again, is doing everything wrong, right.

Heartline is a service for senior citizens. Its purpose is to answer questions—fast. It costs you nothing. Call Monday through Friday from 9 a.m. until 5 p.m. or write Heartline, 8514 North Main St., Dayton, Ohio, 45415. Remember, Heartline pays for all calls on its toll-free number . . . 800-543-2393.

Heartline: My wife is 54 and I am 68. How much can I make without filing federal income tax?—f. M.

Answer: You must file if income is $3,550 or more.

Heartline: I am 62 and drawing from my own account. My husband is 68 and drawing on his own. What I want to know is when I become 65, can I transfer to his account and draw full wife's benefits? — F. D.

Answer: Yes, you are always entitled to whichever benefit is greater.

Heartline: Does Social Security pay retroactive payments when you apply? — D. S.

Answer: Yes, however, never more than one year, and only back to date of entitlement.

Heartline: Who do I call for information on the Homestead Exemption Act? — F. O.

Answer: Some states do not have Homestead Exemption Acts. Many have a tax rebate and some states don't offer any type of tax reduction. To find out if you have any program of tax relief in your area; call your county courthouse or any county government office.

Heartline: If the doctor accepts assignment for my Medicare charges, what does this mean to me? — E. A.

Answer: It means that the doctor cannot charge more than Medicare approves as a "reasonable" charge. You would only have to pay 20 per cent of the charge Medicare approves and, ofcourse, any part of the $60 deductible you have not met for the year.

Heartline: We went north on a vacation from our home in North Dakota. My husband had a bad heart attack. We were in Canada at the time, enroute home. Will Medicare cover his stay in the hospital, and if so, who would I send the bill to? — L.C.

Answer: Yes, this would be covered. Ask your Social Security office where to send the bill.

ANN LANDERS

Fan asks a repeat of column from past describing "What is a man?"

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I'm sending a column that I have saved since March 1962. As you can see, it is yellow with age, but it's such a good one I wish you would rerun it. I'm sure your readers who remember it will be pleased to see it again. Thank you for all the pleasure you've given me. — Mrs. B. Willing, River Forest, Ill.

Dear Mrs. W.: Here's your rerun. Thanks for making my Tuesday easier.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Your column is a study of Man. But what IS Man? Here is my definition:

Man is what WOMAN marries. Generally speaking, he has two hands and two feet. But he rarely has more than one dollar or one idea at a time.

Making a husband out of a man is one of the most intricate and challenging forms of plastic art known to civilization. This art requires a knowledge of science, sculpture, common sense, intuition, patience, faith, hope and charity.

It is a psychological phenomenon that a small, tender, soft, violet-scented creature like a woman should enjoy kissing a stubby-chinned, tobacco-and-bourbon scented thing like a man.

If you flatter a male, you frighten him to death. If you don't you bore him to death.

If he gets what he wants, he becomes uninterested — and it's the end. If he doesn't get what he wants, he becomes uninterested — and there's no beginning.

If you wear gay colors, eye makeup and startling hats he hesitates to take you out. If you wear a tailored suit and a little brown beret he stares all evening at the woman in gay colors, eye makeup and the startling hat.

If you are a clinging vine, incapable of making a decision, he considers you an idiot. If you are decisive and accomplished he considers you a machine.

If you are simple and uncomplicated he longs for a brainy woman with ideas. If you are a brainy woman with ideas he suspects you are competing with him and eventually he dumps you in favor of a stupid playmate.

What is the solution to this puzzlement of human nature, this collage of quirks and contradictions? Who knows the answers? I don't. That's why I'm writing to Ann Landers. — Augusta, Me.

Dear Augusta: Woman was not born to understand man. She was born to love him.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I'll make this short and to the point. My husband and I are having a tough time making it on his paycheck. I want to go back to work. I can get my old job back and it's work I enjoy. The money is excellent. I'd be working the 6:30 a.m. shift and my husband works from 4 p.m. to midnight. (He loves this shift and there is no way I could get him of of it., I've tried.) If I want to work I will have to pay the babysitter because he refuses to watch our two children. He says, "You wanted the kids. Now you can watch 'em. You don't HAVE to work. If you want to go back to your old job then you can pay the sitter.

Ann, I am not asking him to clean or cook — just watch the kids till I get home. What's your advice? — Married to a Hard-Headed Dutchman

Dear Married to a H.H.D.: Before I answer your letter I want to make it plain to all my readers in Grand Rapids and Midland, Mich., and certain parts of Pennsylvania that YOU called him a Hard-Headed Dutchman. I didn't.

Answer: He SHOULD watch the kids, not only to save money but so he can become acquainted with his children. It's painfully apparent that he has a poor relationship with them, and the new setup would alter this immeasureably.

Even if drinking is the "in" thing in your crowd, it needn't crowd you out. Learn the facts from Ann Landers's booklet, "Booze and You — For Teen-Agers Only." Send 35 cents in coin and a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope to Ann Landers, P.O.Box 1400, Elgin, Ill. 60120.

Trash compactor born of necessity

That kitchen appliance known as the garbage compactor originated aboard the Polaris submarine, I'm told. Earlier, garbage jettisoned from a submarine floated to the surface, giving away the position of the craft. You say you saw the movie? All right, so the Polaris boys installed a hydraulic ram that compressed all shipboard trash into metal containers about three feet tall and 10 inches in diameter. Weighted and ejected, these sank. Wonderful! Every household needs one, said the marketing men.,

A. That's the Latin word for table.

Techniques of voting worth noting

By JOSEPH H. FIRMAN

Well, men—this is it!

Today is election day. GET YOUR—go down to the polls and vote. It is your right, privilege and duty to exorcise your democratic franchise, even if you are a Republican.

And you know what? YOUR crummy little ballot counts just as much as Sen. Alan Cranston's, how does that grab you? With your stylus, or "voting instrument," as the state is pleased to call it—that little puncher that looks like a hyporderrmic needle—you can cancel Gov. Reagan's vote on Post-secondary Education Commission Personnel. With one swift jab (don't puncture your thumb!) you can equalize Mayor Tom Bradley's hopes for Miscellaneous Language Changes Regarding Gender. Awesome, ain't it?

The electorate moves in mysterious ways, its wonders to perform. I get a tremendous feeling of power—POWER!—to plunge the little plunger and authorize the state to spend $150 million for State School Building Aid and Earthquake Reconstruction and Replacement Bond Law of 1974. I haven't an earthly what it means, but just suppose the vote was tied until you stepped into your little canvas-flapping, upright coffin polling booth and jabbed downward (I TOLD you to look out for your thumb, dummy! Now you've got blood all over Member of Assembly 62nd District Vote for One).

Okay. The Sovereign State of California is waiting for your vote, you there, with the Band-Aid on your thumb. You plunge, and with one stroke you spend $150 million! Probably more than you'll make in 10 years, unless you're in politics.

While you stand there in your little rickety shack at your polling place, listening to the giggles of the clerks and smelling coffee they are making, you feel like God in His Infinite Wisdom, sucking His bandaged finger, getting ready to dispense $150 million. Unfortunately, you do not have a choice in how the funds are spent. There's no place you can punch that says $150 million to be delivered to my home late at night in small, unmarked bills. You either give it to the schools or it goes to housewives buying sugar—which is now more expensive than gasoline but does not run the car as well. You could sprinkle gold powder on your cereal cheaper.

Property Tax Exemptions, Recall of Public Officers, Low Rent Housing, Wild and Scenic Rivers—beautifully poetic in the midst of all this legal gobbledygook—Low Rent Housing, Student Tuition at the University of California, San Diego County Judicial Districts—what's it all about, Alfie?

Just bear one thing in mind, fellow citizen. Whatever you feel about these candidates and issues, a million other people feel the same. Fact.

So get down to the polling booth and register your wild and scenic vote.

THE DOCTOR COMMENTS

It's possible to cook without eggs

By Lawrence E. Lamb, M.D.

DEAR DR. LAMB — My husband cannot eat eggs. Is there any way I can fix cakes, rolls and desserts for him without using eggs?

DEAR READER — Yes. You would be surprised how many recipes turn out just fine by leaving the egg out entirely. Pancakes are a good example. Use your favorite recipe but leave the egg out entirely, and you will still have good cakes. The same goes for rolls and breads.

Do some experimenting with standard recipes, and you will soon spot all kinds of ways you can provide breads and desserts without causing your husband any problem.

I would recommend one of the new low-fat, low-cholesterol egg preparations, but I am afraid your husband may have a problem that would not tolerate these if his problem is something more than just wanting to reduce the cholesterol and fat intake in the diet.

Incidentally, I have a large number of recipes that contain no eggs at all in my book, "What You Need to Know About Food and Cooking for Health" (Viking Press). Ask your local library for the book.

DEAR DR. LAMB — My husband has just returned home from the hospital. He had an operation for kidney stones and had to have his left kidney removed. He is 38 years old.

The doctor tells us not to worry because you only need one healthy kidney to function normally. But I want to know all I can about how I can help my husband keep his kidney healthy and not to get any more stones. Can you give me a few suggestions?

DEAR READER — There is just one practical suggestion that applies to what you and your husband can do. Regardless of the type of stone, or its cause, he should be certain to drink at least four quarts of liquid a day. This should be spread out over the 24 hours. The purpose of the fluid is to be sure he passes lots of urine each day. The larger volume will help to dilute the relatively insoluble salts that are part of the stone formation.

If he perspires a lot or is exposed to heat, that might not be enough. In that case he will need to increase his fluid intake even more.

Although special diets are sometimes used in testing patients with renal stones, most authorities agree there is no need to restrict dairy products to try to avoid stones.

There are different types of stones. Some are more likely to form if the urine is too acid and others if the urine is too alkaline. If your doctor knows the type of stones formed, he may want to try medicines that are sometimes used with varying success to prevent new stone formation. He may not think that is necessary in your husband's case.

Anyone who has a stone needs chemical tests to see if there is an abnormality in calcium metabolism, controlled by the little parathyroid glands on each side of the thyroid.

Kidney infections sometimes contribute to the formation of a stone. It is important to treat any sign of a kidney infection promptly.

All of these measures, except drinking the fluids, are up to your doctor, but drinking adequate fluids is one thing you can do, and it is important regardless of which kind of stone is formed.

Send your question to Dr. Lamb, in care of the Progress-Bulletin, P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, N.Y. 10019. For a copy of Dr. Lamb's booklet on cholesterol, send 50 cents to the same address and ask for the "Cholesterol" booklet.

What people say

"Although a total of $94 billion was spent last year (in medical and health care), and this figure continues to rise annually by 10 to 15 per cent, it has not improved the health of our citizens and has in some instances, jeopardized it . . ."

—Dr. Paul B. Cornely in an editorial in the American Journal of Public Health.

"There is no war, nuclear or conventional, by which the so-called winner, assuming there was one, could conceivably win back by war the resources used and destroyed in waging it."

—Prime Minister Gough Whitlam of Australia, calling a war for resources "the supreme folly."

Surefire predictions for election

By DICK WEST

WASHINGTON (UPI) — These past few days I have been slogging through the grassroots sounding out the voters on this year's congressional election.

Although there were times when one couldn't see the whistlestops for the groundswells, I believe I have gotten a pretty firm grasp on the mood of the electorate.

So I new feel emboldened to make the following 19 predictions:

1. An early morning check of polling places will reveal that the voter turnout is "moderate to heavy" in some areas and "light to moderate" in others.

2. Voting machine breakdowns will delay the final tabulation in a number of precincts.

3. Rival candidates will put aside partisanship on election eve and make statesman-like broadcasts urging all voters to go to the polls.

4. One of the above candidates will be defeated as a result of an unusually big voter turnout.

5. Several losing candidates will complain of voting irregularities.

6. Several other losing candidates will demand recounts.

7. The atmosphere at the election headquarters of the party winning control of Congress will be festive.

8. At least 12 per cent of the candidates who are hopelessly behind will refuse to concede defeat in time to make the morning editions.

9. The farm vote will be late coming in.

10. The loser of an election bet will be required to push the winner down Main Street in a wheelbarrow.

11. The defeat of the losing party will be caused by a combination of extraordinary circumstances rather than repudiation of its candidates.

12. In their victory statements, 97.9 per cent of the winning candidates will reveal that they couldn't have done it without their wives.

13. Officials of the losing party will point out that something good will have come from the election if it causes rival factions to close ranks and start rebuilding for 1976.

14. The returns, whatever they may be, will bolster the prospects of all 58 Democratic presidential candidates in the Senate.

15. Somewhere a dark horse will come through.

16. Someone will win in a landslide.

17. Someone will lose because he failed to keep his fences mended.

18. The main cause of defeat will be some type of backlash.

19. It will be a big year for mandates.

King Henry VIII changed personality during lifetime

LONDON (UPI) — As a young man, King Henry VIII of England was charming, pleasant and fun-loving. But when he died in 1547 at age 56, Henry was an unpredictable tyrant who killed off his wives and had hundreds of his subjects executed for no reason at all. His mind may have been affected by syphilis.

The theory is contained in one of 15 biographical essays collected by geneticist Arnold Sorsby from medical journals dating back 60 years and published in a new book, titled "Tenements of Clay."

Contributors to the collection diagnosed the physical problems of historical figures ranging from Noah (allegedly an albino) to William Shakespeare (who may have had writer's cramp) as well as Ludwig van Beethoven, Napolean Bonaparte and Jane Austen.

Dr. Ove Brinch, a Danish physician, suggested Henry may have caught syphilis from the first of his six wives, Catherine of Aragon, who by most accounts had an affair with a Spanish monk before marrying the 18-year-old king.

Henry had a nose deformity, a persistent leg ulcer, skin diseases and suffered from rages, forgetfulness and headaches in later life —all cited by Brinch as evidence of the presence of syphilis.

General Motors agrees to halt ad

WASHINGTON (UPI) — General Motors has agreed to stap advertising that its cars handle well unless it has competent scientific evidence eo back up such claims, the Federal Trade Commission announced Monday.

The FTC said GM and its arvertising agency, Campbell Ewald Co., signed consent agreements growing out of an advertising campaign for the 1971 Chevrolet Vega.

The advertisement in question quoted Road and Track Magazine as saying that Vega "is beyond a doubt the best handling passenger ever built in the United States."

The FTC claimed GM could not prove the magazine made that statement.

Under the order any future claim involving comparative handling of GM cars must be suported by scientific tests.

Specifically the tests must show how the car handles when emergency steering maneuvers are necessary, how the car takes corners at speeds above 30 miles an hour as well as how it performs in heavy cross winds, on rough roads and under other severe steering and braking conditions.

At the same time the commission announced it was dropping a complaint against another GM advertisement involving the 1971 model Opel 1900. The complaint alleged GM had no reasonable basis for claiming the car's chassis never needed lubrication.

WORLD ALMANAC FACTS

The giant Sequoia trees of California, the largest living things on earth, are being threatened by hordes of carpenter ants, The World Almanac says. Of the 20 towering trees which have fallen during the past six years, most were found to be infested with carpenter ants. About 75 per cent of the fallen trees were also found to have extreme fungus decay.

Bridge

One too many bids can hurt

By Oswald & James Jacoby

One of the worst habits a bridge player can acquire is that of making one bid too many. West's takeout double of one spade was reasonable. The hand might belong to his side. But after North's redouble, it should have beeen apparent that South was going to wind up playing some spade contract. Hence, there was no reason for West to bid two hearts.

	NORTH ♠ A 10 5 3 ♥ 8 7 3 2 ♦ A 5 ♣ A 7 4	S
WEST ♠ 2 ♥ K J 9 5 4 ♦ K Q 8 ♣ K Q 10 9		EAST ♠ 8 6 ♥ Q ♦ 10 9 7 6 4 2 ♣ 8 6 5 3
	SOUTH (D) ♠ K Q J 9 7 4 ♥ A 10 6 ♦ J 3 ♣ J 2

North-South vulnerable

West	North	East	South
			1♠
Dble	Redble	2♦	Pass
2♥	4♠	Pass	Pass
Pass

Opening lead—K♣

West's king of clubs was allowed to hold the first trick. He could have beaten the hand by an immediate shift to a low heart, but no one could figure that one out. West shifted to the king of diamonds.

South grabbed that one; drew trumps; cashed the ace of clubs; ruffed dummy's last club and threw West in with the queen of diamonds.

Now West led a low heart to his partner's queen, but South knew exactly what to do. West was marked with five hearts so South just let East hold the trick. East had to lead a club or a diamond and whatever he led would allow South to ruff in dummy and discard his 10 of hearts.

South might well have worked out this same play, if West had not made that one unnecessary bid. He might have, but we will never know.

Irish exports rise and more people staying

SEATTLE (UPI) — Ireland's products are leaving the country in greater quantities than ever before but its people are staying and some are returning, according to John G. Malloy, Ireland's ambassador to the United States.

Mallay said here that exports increased 34 per cent in 1973. The exports included electronics, machinery, chemicals and engineering products in addition to the traditional linens, wools and crystal.

The ambassador said the investment by hundreds of foreign firms in Irish industry has created more jobs in the past decade and for the first time in more than a hundred years Ireland's population showed an increase in the last census.

Malloy said Ireland wants to keep its image of a charming, easy going nation "but we need to achieve a golden mean."

Economist says country in recession

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Albert Rees, head of the Council of Wages and Stability, said today despite President Ford's official stand the country is in a recession.

"It's an unusual recession because prices are still going up and it has not been declared an official recession by the National Bureau of Economic Research," he said.

"But I think when we look back on this in a year or so from now, it will have been declared a recession."

Rees, formerly a Princeton University economist who was brought into the administration by Ford, was asked on the CBS Morning News how his stand conflicted with the President's.

"President Ford, of course, is not an economist," Rees said. "Most of the economists in the administration have called it a recession in one way or another."

When asked about the possibility of imposing wage and price controls, Rees said:

"I'm against across the board wage and price controls. I think the costs are enormous ... I do think the rate of inflation is going to decrease in the months ahead and I don't think controls will be necessary."

3 feared dead in landslide

YAMASKA, QUE. (UPI) — Three persons were presumed dead Saturday in a landslide in this small Quebec town, about 50 miles from Montreal.

Quebec Provincial Police said the slide sent a portion of a roadway into the Yamaska River, carrying with it an elderly man and two children. Their identities were not known.

Ten families in the area were evacuated from their homes as officials feared additional slides.

A police spokesman said the slide was about 200 feet wide.

He said searchers were attempting to recover the bodies.

'Dutchman' at it again!

ATLANTA (UPI) — Norm Van Brocklin is hard enough to interview when things are going his way, but, when the "Dutchman" is in trouble, give him plenty of elbow room.

The "Dutchman" is in trouble now. His Atlanta Falcons are floundering at 2-6 after taking their worst shellacking (42-7) in six years this past Sunday at Miami —and the critics are clamoring for Van Brocklin's head.

That's why it really came as no big surprise when Van Brocklin lost his cool Monday and offered to fight a sportswriter he felt was pushing him too hard.

You've got to say one thing for the "Dutchman," he was fair about his offer: he extended it to every other writer and sportscaster in the room.

The thing that galls Norm Van Brocklin is not the way the news media and fans have been down on him, but that a team he really believed could be a winner has done so poorly.

The Atlanta Falcons have not had a losing season since 1970 and their 9-5 mark last year established them as a solid NFL club. The Falcons, encouraged by a 4-2 pre-season showing, were thinking "playoffs" at the start of the campaign.

But Norm Van Brocklin refuses to make excuses. The Dutchman is a proud, stubborn man who has such an intense desire to win that he appears unwilling to accept the fact that sometimes defeat is inevitable.

This accounts for his apparent bitterness when the Falcons lose, especially when they lose games he feels they could have won.

He blames the pre-season player strike and "a lack of heart" which he feels was fostered by strike issues for the Falcons' showing. He does not explain why these factors should affect the Falcons more than those NFL teams which are playing winning football.

Atlanta players avoid Van Brocklin's wrath (and a probable fine) by declining public comment about their coach. But some have said privately that a change is desperately needed.

Atlanta Falcons owner Rankin Smith has indicated he might make a change if another head cach were available. But Smith says he doesn't know of such a coach.

There has been talk about Smith turning the job over to Marion Campbell, the Falcons' defensive coach. A former Van Brocklin teammate (Philadelphia) who assisted the Dutchman at Minnesota and then rejoined him in Atlanta in 1969, Campbell has built the Falcons defensive unit into one of the better ones in the NFL.

The defense has remained Atlanta's strength even in this season of despair. You can't judge that defense by statistics because the mistake-plague offense has turned the ball over so often in bad position that the defense has spent much of the season trying to get the Falcons out of a hole.

"If you keep getting hit on the head, you're bound to wind up with a headache," Van Brocklin said recently in defense of his defense.

Van Brocklin is disturbed by cries for personnel changes because he simply doesn't have anyone else to take the place of the ones he is now using.

"You figure out who your best 11 players are and go with them," said Van Brocklin. "When you start juggling out of desperation, you're just asking for trouble."

Van Brocklin has stuck with Lee at quarterback because backup quarterback Pat Sullivan has been mainly ineffective when used. And he has not used rookie Kim McQuilken, a third-round draft choice from Lehigh, because, "McQuilken is not ready to step in as a pro quarterback."

"Dump the Dutchman" and "Bring Pro Football to Atlanta" bumper stickers abound in Atlanta.

"There's only one man who can 'Dump the Dutchman,'" fumed Van Brocklin. "That's Rankin Smith, the man who hired me."

But it still adds up to a lot of frustration for Van Brocklin and that's why he lost his cool Monday.

An interviewer asked Van Brocklin if he was "still a fighter."

"You're damn right, I'm a fighter," Van Brocklin said. "Are you a fighter? Do you want to fight me? Anyone who wants to fight, stand up. We'll start stacking chairs right now."

The brawny Dutchman got no takers.

Preps getting their kicks this year

High school teams are finally making use of the foot in football this year.

That's right, all this time the high school football teams in Southern California have been playing that old traditional game without much use of any kind of foot.

But this year is different.

Along with all the hotly-contested races for league championships, there is also a race among field goal kickers. And two of the top six contenders are from the valley.

Damien High's Rick Davis is currently battling for the lead with his six field goals, while Claremont's Jim VanZee is right behind with his five three-pointers.

But all eyes are on the two leaders in the CIF's foot race.

Dave Donk of Brea-Olinda High has booted eight field goals so far this season, and is closing in on the season record. That one was set by Jim White of Barstow in 1968.

Right behind Donk is Newport Harbor's Art Sorce and Lowell's Rich Cruz with seven apiece. Then Davis is all alone at six, while VanZee and Los Alamitos sophomore Rick Sims stand at five.

★ ★ ★

So why all of a sudden are there a rash of field goal kickers this year?

Well, as far as this area is concerned, it appears to have a great deal to do with soccer.

Both Claremont and Damien are two of the top soccer powers in the valley, with Davis and VanZee among the best players on their respective teams.

So the real game "futbol" has made the American version of the game a little more interesting as far as high school play is concerned.

Of course, professionally it almost ruined the American game since so many soccer players from foreign countries were transplanted to the football field.

Eventually, I guess, if soccer continues to grow on the high school level as it has in the past couple of years, and if enough soccer players are used as place-kickers for their football teams, a few changes may be necessary in regard to the field goal rule.

At least in high school play the goal posts can't be moved back any further.

★ ★ ★

Davis and VanZee aren't the only field goal kickers in this area, although they have been the only ones to put many points on the board. Ganesha has David Segura, Chino has Stan Surina and Pomona has Dave Zibell. All three have proved they can kick for distance, but haven't had the opportunities Davis and VanZee have had.

Bill Darrell of Charter Oak IS one who has aided the Lancers' cause. He has kicked four field goals this season, along with booting nine extra points.

BIG GAME: Prep Sports World, a KNBC (Channel 4) weekly Saturday afternoon program will be airing the San Marino-South Pasadena football game at noon this week. San Marino is unbeaten and ranked third in CIF 3-A, while South Pasadena is once-beaten. Both teams play in the Rio Hondo League, along with twice-beaten Temple City.

BASKETBALL CLASSIC: Notre Dame High of Riverside will be hosting the inaugural Notre Dame Holiday Basketball Classic set for Dec. 18-21. The only valley team entered is Ontario Christian High.

BENEFIT GAME: Friday's Bishop Amat-Pius X football game at Mt. San Antonio College will be played for the benefit of Les Arehart, a recent victim of a crippling automobile accident. Arehart was an All-CIF and Most Valuable Player at Bishop Amat. All of the funds from the classic game will be donated to the Les Arehart Benefit Fund.

CLOE'S LINES: Here are my predicted point spreads for this weekend's valley high school football games. Chino by 7 over Montclair; Ganesha by 12 over Claremont; Garey by 8 over Damien; Upland by 14 over Pomona; Royal Oak by 10 over Bonita; Gladstone by 15 over Ontario; Walnut by 3 over San Dimas; Rowland by 20 over Nogales; Chaffey by 18 over Pacific; Sierra Vista by 8 over Alta Loma; Charter Oak by 6 over Northview; Big Bear by 24 over Webb; L.A. Lutheran by 12 over Ontario Christian, La Verne Lutheran by 2 over CSDR; Huntington Valley Christian by 7 over Western Christian.

P-B Staff Writer

LOS ANGELES — Atlanta Falcons Publicist Hal Hayes stole the show at the weekly meeting of the Southern California Football Writers Monday.

Hayes, naturally, was questioned about the explosive meeting between coach Norm Van Brocklin and Atlanta writers which hit the wires out here about mid-morning.

"Norman and the writers go at it pretty good," deadpanned the hulking Hayes. "It's a barrel of laughs every Monday."

Hayes is in Los Angeles to do advance publicity for the Rams-Falcons game Sunday at the Coliseum.

A writer inquired if anything was new with Pat Sullivan. The 1972 Heiseman trophy winner has seen little action with Atlanta.

"His wife had twins," Hayes shot back. After a pause, he added, "I wasn't trying to be a wise guy, but I was reminded of similar question about quarterbacks in the clubhouse.

"Norman told me, 'You're the vice president in charge of sex and music and when I want you're bleeping opinion about quarterbacks, I'll ask for it."

A bear of a man (6-1, 250 pounds) with a soft southern drawl, and great sense of humor and timing, Hayes would seem to be one of the few people who could do his job which requires working closely with the fiery Van Brocklin and still retain his composure.

Van Brocklin, the one-time great Ram quarterback, was the main topic of conversation.

In a more serious vein, Hayes offered his personal opinion of Van Brocklin when asked if the Dutchman was as paranoid as he seems.

"I don't think he is paranoid," Hayes replied. I just think he is a very intent man who is being eaten up inside by the way things are going."

One of the Hayes straight lines drew the biggest laugh. Explaining how he found out about Van Brocklin challenging Atlanta writers to a fight, Hayes started to explain that he called the home office Monday morning to find out about injuries (to players in the Falcons' 42-7 loss to Miami).

He got as far as saying he called to find out about injuries when the place broke up. Then he was asked if any of the writers had accepted Van Brocklin's challenge.

"Nobody did at the press conference," he deadpanned. "That'll probably come later."

Honored as players of the week were tight end Dave Parks of the Sun (pro), defensive back Marvin Cobb of USC (university) and wide receiver Butch Johnson of UC Riverside (college).

Quoting the coaches:

DICK VERMEIL, UCLA — "The most unfortunate thing that happened to us Saturday (at Washington) was that we got our bleep beat. They (the Huskies) turned the ball over to us three times in the first half. If we had any punch at all, we'd have been ahead 21-0.

"Charlie Schuhmann (from Bonita High) has been hurt all year. He has a pinched nerve in his shoulder and it hurts when he sticks his shoulder into anyone. I think he's reached the point where he's lost his confidence. We're only using him on special teams now. But I hope he regains his confidence. He's a class guy."

BOB TOLEDO, UC RIVERSIDE — "We only have two seniors starting. We're a young team. Frank Jordan, our field goal kicker, was six for six going into the game with CSLA. He missed two from 49 and 39 yards but came back to kick a 23-yarder to win the game (against CSLA).

JIM WILLIAMS, CSLA — "I want to commend coach Toledo and the Highlanders on their excellent performance. It was our first loss (25-22).

"We play Southern University Friday night in the Coliseum (Gold Rush Classic) We've never played there before and we're treating it as our bowl game. Southern is big, powerful, fast and well coached. We're small, frightened and coming off an emotional game."

CHARLIE BATES, SOUTHERN UNIVERSITY — Our defensive line averages 240-245 pounds and our linebackers about 215. If our defensive backs don't break 4.8 (seconds) in full gear, they keep moving (to another school). As of last year, Southern led all schools in the number of players sent to the pros."

HEAD-ON COLLISION

49er receiver Tom Mitchell loses the ball in a collision with Ram safety Dave Elmendorf in Monday night's nationally televised game in San Francisco. Rams won, 15-13.

Rams' victory raises questions

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — How good are the Los Angeles Rams?

It's hard to tell because their offense is spotty, but there is nothing wrong with the Rams' defense, and that's where you win ball games.

Monday night, the Rams did everything nearly letter perfect and while their offense generated only 303 yards, the defense held the San Francisco 49ers to 266 for a 15-13 victory in the National Football League's nationally televised game of the week.

True the Rams went into the game as 14-point favorites, which in retrospect was an outrageous overlay, even against a San Francisco team that had lost five in a row and was having quarterback problems.

But James Harris, now the No. 1 quarterback with the trade of John Hadl, proved good enough for the second week in a row, doing exactly as his coach dictated while guiding the Rams to their fourth straight victory.

It also was Los Angeles's ninth in a row over San Francisco and it snapped a Monday night jinx that had seen the home team win or tie for 21 consecutive weeks going back through the 1973 season.

"It was as fine a team effort as I have seen," said Chuck Knox in admiration of his Rams, who now lead the NFC West by three games with six to go. "We made all the big plays when we needed them the most."

Linebacker Isiah Robertson made perhaps the biggest one of all when he spoiled Norm Snead's San Francisco debut by picking off a pass with minutes left to play.

The Los Angeles offense, starting on the San Francisco 49, did a fine job of eating up the clock the rest of the way and was on the verge of another score when time finally ran out.

Robertson did a good job of "reading" Snead on his big pass interception.

The 49ers, trailing by only two points, recovered a fumble by Larry McCutcheon on their own 42 with a little more than four minutes remaining. All they needed to do was move the ball 30 yards for a winning field goal try but on the first play from scrimmage, a running play, the 49ers were caught holding.

With the ball back on the 32, Snead, who had taken over for rookie Tom Owen at the start of the second half, was forced to pass, and the Los Angeles defense was set for him. They put on a big rush as Robertson faded back with wide receiver Gene Washington.

Forced out of the pocket, Snead hurried his throw and Robertson grabbed it in front of Washington. The 49ers never again got their hands on the ball.

"I saw Gene between the linebacker (Robertson) and the defensive back," Snead said of his interception. "I tried to lob the ball over them but I got hit and knocked off balance. I knew I threw a dying quail the moment I let it go."

Still, had it not been for Snead, picked up a little more than a week ago from the New York Giants, the 49ers wouldn't have been as close as they were in the final minutes.

The veteran of 14 pro seasons passed the 49ers within range for Bruce Gossett to kick a 31-yard field goal with three minutes left in the third quarter and then connected with Washington on a 39-yard scoring pass with 6:53 to go to put the 49ers in position for a big upset.

Harris, who completed 12-of-20 passes for 150 yards, took the Rams 80 yards in 15 plays, with Tony Baker crashing over from the one in the first quarter. Then, early in the second period, he hit tight end Bob Klein on a 23-yard throw for a 12-0 lead.

David Ray tried to run over for the extra point after the first TD, following a low snap from center, and was nailed short of the end zone. After the second TD, he simply muffed the kick. Those two misses could have proved disastrous, but Ray kicked a 20-yard field goal in the first minute of the final quarter and that proved to be the winner.

In defense of the Ram offense, Harris said he didn't see any reason for an apology.

"We played well enough to win," he said. "That's all we're trying to do—win the game. We expected a tough game from the 49ers and they gave us one."

The Rams host Atlanta on Sunday and the 49ers meet Dallas.

Game ball the reason

Switzer explains ban

NORMAN, Okla. (UPI) — Barry Switzer said Monday he believes Oklahoma was banished from the coaches rankings because he gave a game ball to the assistant coach involved in the transcript case that put the Sooners on probation.

Members of the American Football Coaches Association vote in the UPI poll.

"I'm sure the UPI ban is because I gave the ball to Bill Michael," the Sooner coach said. "They felt like I was slapping the NCAA; they felt like I was condoning what happened.

"I did it because the offensive linemen came to me and asked me to give Michael the ball if we beat Texas (two years ago)," he said. "If I'd known the trouble it would cause I wouldn't have done it. At the time I did it because of the feeling our squad had about the guy. I said it was a mistake, but it was an honest mistake and I can live with it."

Oklahoma got two years' probation and quarterback Kerry Jackson lost a years' eligibility because his high school transcript was altered.

Switzer said he was stung by remarks in Sports Illustrated that he considered "insinuations" of illegal recruiting.

"It would be a tremendous advantage to Oklahoma if everybody stopped cheating," he said. "If everybody stopped cheating it's got to help teams like Oklahoma and Nebraska. Then the only thing they (the athletes) can go for is a quality program."

Switzer said he voluntarily took a lie detector test two years ago and proved he had not offered a prospect a car, but the recruit wound up at the same Southwest Conference school that reported Switzer and had an auto given him by the alumni.

"And you know what, nothing has happened," he said.

Switzer said he made a point of establishing in the test he never offered any player a car or cash "in the 15 ears I've been coaching, here and at Arkansas."

He said it isn't coaches who cheat anyway, but "alumni who don't know the rules."

He said he spent hours with the Sports Illustrated author, but much of the story came from statements he made months ago or from rem..rks he denied making at all.

A's place four on All-Stars

NEW YORK (UPI) — The Oakland A's, winners of three straight world championships, reaffirmed their monopoly on the talent pool today by naming four players to the 1974 United Press International American League All-Star squad.

The A's named shortstop Bert Campaneris, outfielders Joe Rudi and Reggie Jackson and pitcher Jim "Catfish" Hunter to the squad which was selected by sports writers and correspondents from each of the league's 12 cities.

No other team had more than two players selected. Texas, Baltimore and Detroit each plced two while Chicago and Minnesota had one player chosen.

Outfielder Jeff Burroughs and pitcher Ferguson Jenkins were selected from the Rangers, who finished second to the A's in the AL West; third baseman Brooks Robinson and designated hitter Tommy Davis were named from Baltimore and Detroit placed catcher Bill Freehan and relief pitcher John Hiller on the squad.

Rounding out the team were first baseman Dick Allen of Chicago and second baseman Rod Carew of Minnesota.

Allen, although he "retired" before the season ended, had virtually no competiton in the balloting for first base. The controversial slugger grabbed 13 of the 17 votes cast for the position. Allen batted .301, led the league with 32 home runs and drove in 88 runs despite missing the last three weeks of the season.

Carew, the major league's leading hitter with a .364 average, was an easy winner for second base by taking 16 votes while Campaneris won the balloting for shortstop over Texas' Toby Harrah by a vote of 11-6. Campaneris enjoyed his best year in the majors with a .290 batting average.

The closest balloting was in the race for third base where the 37-year-old Robinson edged Oakland's Sal Bando by two votes, nine to seven. Robinson enjoyed his best year at the plate in nine years from standpoint of average by hitting .288 and his fielding was still nonpariel.

Burroughs was the top votegetter among the outfielders with 15 votes. The 23-year-old slugger led the league in runs batted in with 118 and also hit 25 home runs and batted .301.

Rudi and Jarkson each collected 14 votes. Rudi batted .293, hit 22 homers and drove in 99 runs while Jackson batted .289 with 29 homers and 93 rbi's.

Freehan, one of baseball's big comeback stories of the year, beat out New York's Thurman Munson in the voting for catcher. Freehan, enjoying his best season since 1971, hit .296 with 18 homers and 60 rbi's and received eight votes to four for Munson, who batted .261 with 13 homers and 60 rbi's.

Davis also was an easy winner in the voting for designated hitter. The 35-year-old veteran collected nine votes to easily outdistance Kansas City's Hal McRae, who was second with three. Davis hit .289 and drove in 84 runs while helping the Orioles to the AL East Division title.

In the balloting for pitchers each voter was asked to select two starters and one reliever and Hunter, Jenkins and Hiller easily emerged as the top votegetters. Hunter, the AL Cy Young Award winner, received 16 votes and Jenkins collected 14 while Hiller led the relievers with seven votes.

Hunter posted a 25-12 record with a 2.49 earned run average while Jenkins was also 25-12 with a 2.83 era. Hiller posted a 17-14 record with a 2.64 era.

BUFFALO, N.Y. (UPI) — Ernie DiGregorio, last season's rookie of the year in the National Basketball Association, will undergo surgery Tuesday to repair a torn knee cartilage, the Buffalo Braves announced Monday.

Braves' team physician Dr. Stephan Joyce, who will perform the surgery, said DiGregorio will be lost to the club for six to eight weeks.

HONOLULU (UPI) — Frankie Duarte of Los Angeles decked Cecil Escobido of the Philippines twice Monday night before winning on a TKO in the second round.

Duarte, 113 ½, won when referee Wilbert Mimm stopped the fight at 1:46 of the second round. Escobido weighed in at 115 ¼.

Escobido is the eighth-ranked flyweight contender but could not keep up with the fast-punching Duarte.

ANAHEIM (UPI) — The Southern California Sun, which failed to meet its payroll last week and is expected to finish $1 million in the red this season, has promised to pay its players when the WFL club returns from Hawaii.

Sun general manager Curly Morrison said the players will get their late pay checks when they return from their game against the Hawaiians Wednesday night in Honolulu.

"They know the situation, which is a temporary one, and they will get their full pay," Morrison said Monday.

Although the team has averaged 26,000 at home, Sun president Larry Hatfield says the club will lose about $1 million this season.

ST. LOUIS (UPI) — The Los Angeles Kings, whose 7-1-4 record is the best in the NHL, meet the St. Louis Blues here tonight.

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — Ivan Weiss, who took part in 21 tackles in California's 15-15 tie against favored Southern California, has been named Pacific-8 Conference Defensive Player of the Week.

Bobby Jacks of New Orleans was second, with 7,600 total pins, while Dick Weber of St. Louis, the all-time money winner on the professional bowling circuit, was third.

Defending champion Marty Piraino of Syracuse was in 10th place.

For lifting TV blackouts

Congress blasted

CHICAGO (UPI) — Congress has "misread the dangers" of forcing National Football League teams to lift blackouts of games on local television, General Manager Jim Finks of the Chicago Bears said today.

Finks' comment came after the Bears played the Minnesota Vikings Sunday with 22,410 ticket holders failing to show up.

"That pretty well verified what we in football have felt for years," he said. "With Congress now involved in our business and telling us when we can telecast and when we don't have to, I think we have misread the dangers of lifting blackouts."

Finks said he believed the large number of missing patrons was due to the fact that the game was on local television and there was continued rain during the night and up to game time.

"I feel that the home team has an advantage when the stands are full of partisan fans, and I think we had

Recreation basketball leagues set

The Pomona Park and Recreation Department has announced plans for its 1974-75 basketball program. Organization meetings are planned for early November with practice games in December. League play begins the week of January 6th.

The adult teams will hold their organization meeting Thursday, Nov. 7 at 7:30 p.m., in the Emerson Junior High Gymnasium. The Youth Organization League meets on Thursday, Nov. 14 at 7:30 p.m., at the Emerson Jr. High.

Adult civic leagues are comprised of four separate programs. Regulation, Slo-break, Womens and half-court basketball leagues are scheduled. All have an entry fee that covers the cost of officials and awards. Teams are expected to provide their own uniforms and other equipment.

The Regulation Leagues are just that. Regular basketball as a high school or college team would play. The fee is $120 per squad. That includes two practice games and a minimum of 14 league contests. Teams are classified into equal leagues following the practice round.

The womens' program plays regulation girls high school rules. The entry fee is $120 per team with the same guarantee on games as the regulation leagues.

Slo-break basketball is for the adult over the age of 25 years. It is regular basketball with a few notable exceptions. A team must take ten seconds to bring the ball across the center court line. Shots are not allowed within the key and man to man defense is limited to the last three minutes of play. Entry fee is $75 per team.

The half-court league is the least expensive and possibly the most recreational. It may also be the best conditioning program. The entry fee is $15 per team. Three games are played by each team one night a week. They are self officiated contest with teams limited to not more than one player over the height of 6-foot-1 on the court at a time.

Church's, Boy Scout troops, school clubs and the like make-up the squads in the Youth Organization League. Entrance is confined to responsible organizations. There are two divisions — senior high, grades 9 through 12, and junior high, 8th grade and below. Entry fee's for the Seniors is $50 per team and the Juniors is set at $35 per team. The younger group only uses one official.

Pomona will also sponsor a youth basketball program for boys and girls beginning in December. There will be two divisions, the 4th, 5th and 6th graders forming one group and 7th and 8th graders another.

Those interested officiating in the adult program should attend a meeting tonight at 7:30 p.m. at the Emerson cafetorium. Officials are paid $7 per game. Further information may be obtained by telephoning the recreation office, 620-2526.

Woody closes practices

COLUMBUS, Ohio (UPI) — Ohio State Coach Woody Hayes, moving quicker than usual, announced at his weekly press luncheon Monday that practice sessions of the No. 1 ranked Buckeyes will be closed for the rest of the season.

"I'm sorry to have to do it," said Hayes, who in past years has locked the gates the week prior to the Michigan finale. "But this is the time of season when teams do add certain things to their offense and all you have to do is let one fellow in who knows what he's looking for and you prejudice your chances of winning."

Hayes said there had also been a great demand for meetings and interviews with All-America tailback Archie Griffin, quarterback Cornelius Greene and others.

"It takes their mind off football," said Hayes. "We had the same trouble when we had (Hopalong) Cassady and (Tom) Matte. They were good copy."

Hayes said some people may ask if he might not be overdoing it by locking things up so early.

"Not when you have as much at stake as we do," he explained. "We can have a great team."

Hayes again apologized for his decision, saying "I really hate to do it because all of you are good friends, but I'm sure you want to see us win."

He said the Buckeyes came through the 49-7 victory over Illinois with "relatively few injuries," one of the exceptions being a bruised hand suffered by Greene, who will be kept out of practice a couple of days.

Hayes, however, assured Greene's hand "is already responding to treatment."

"Our biggest mistake Saturday was leaving Cornelius in one play too many," Hayes said, "but we wanted to get good field position before we put our Red II team (second offense) in. We certainly weren't trying to run up the score."

The reserves scored twice against the Illini and, according to Hayes, have been "doing a better job lately."

"We need them for depth," he said. "We'll be losing a great senior class but if we can get them ready we can be, what do the coaches say, 'representative' next year."

Quarterback Coach George Chaump, who reported on the Michigan State defense, the Buckeyes' opponent Saturday in a regionally televised game at East Lansing, said the Spartans "don't seem to have any apparent weakness."

"Through the years, Michigan State has been known for good defensive teams and this year is no exception," Chaump said. "They are well coached, but more importantly, they are physically tough. Our offense will face its toughest test of the year."

Defensive Coordinator George Hill reported on the Michigan State defense, calling Spartan quarterback Charley Baggett "a truly great quarterback."

"He has the ability to run, he's deceptive and he throws the ball well," Hill said.

After viewing films of the Spartans' last three games, Hill was also impressed with the running and blocking of fullback Levi Jackson, calling him "a load."

"He is an exceptionally fine blocker on the corner," Hill continued. "He had Wisconsin's ends down almost every play, but he also had the Purdue and Illinois ends down too, so he must be a heck of a blocker."

Greene, who was selected the back of the week, and Griffin, each received six Buckeye leaf awards for their performances against Illinois, while guard Ted Smith led the linemen with 5-½.

On defense, sophomore tackle Nick Buonamici received 6-½, and middle guard Arnie Jones 5 to lead the way.

Portland players agree to play game

PORTLAND, Ore. (UPI) — The Portland Storm players, who have not been paid for the past two games, decided Monday to play a World Football League game in Orlando, Fla., Thursday, one day later than the contest originally set here.

Player representative Sam Silas said back payments to players were expected "as soon as the bureaucratic red tape" is taken care of, though he did not spell out what this involved.

Silas said the players agreed to resume practice after not turning out Sunday because of the dispute over salary and the move of the game to Orlando. He said the agreement reached regarding the game and financial matters "will be discussed Thursday night on television so all the world can understand."

Silas said the agreement apparently included an understanding to schedule a game in Portland should the Storm reach the playoffs.

Quarterback Greg Barton said John Bassett of Memphis, head of the WFL's executive committee, told him the game must be played this week in Orlando "because that $3 million deal of new ownership down there is contingent on moving the game."

Barton said Bassett told him the league plan involved each team taking 50 per cent of its gate receipts for the last two weeks of the season, plus television money and other funds in trust, to pay all players who are owed money and bring them up to date. "The players are not greedy in what we're doing," Barton said. "We want everybody to get back pay: The coaches, the secretaries, the managers, trainers, everybody."

The players had indicated they would not play at Orlando and would not practice until the back pay situation was settled.

Orlando will guarantee the Storm $50,000 plus $20,000 in expenses for playing the game in Florida.

The Orlando game was originally set for Wednesday, but was rescheduled for Thursday night. The Portland club will leave Wednesday by chartered plane and return right after the contest Thursday.

Last week the club took a commercial flight for the game in Shreveport, La., leaving behind one coach and a doctor because of the tight financial situation.

When asked why the game would be held Thursday rather than Wednesday in Orlando, Storm business manager Bill Landers said:

"What's new? Everything changes, that's all."

Catch is finally confirmed

COOPERSTOWN, N.Y. (UPI) — For nearly 50 years, outfielder Sam Rice kept silent about his controversial catch in the third game of the 1925 World Series. But the Baseball Hall of Fame has now released Rice's own testimony, kept in a sealed envelope for the past nine years.

Rice, the Washington Senators' right fielder caught a drive by the Pittsburgh Pirates' catcher, Earl Smith, and stumbled into the low bleacher seats among the cheering home fans at Griffith Stadium.

Regaining his feet, he displayed the ball triumphantly as umpire Cy Rigler called the batter out.

The Pirates protested Rice had dropped the ball when he fell and that a fan stuck it back in his glove.

Umpire Rigler, if he is still alive, can breathe a sigh of relief. Rice claimed in the sealed letter that he never lost possession of the ball.

Rice penned his report of the incident in 1965, sealed it and entrusted the document to Paul S. Kerr, president of the National Baseball Hall of Fame and Museum. Following Rice's death at 84 last month, during the World Series, Kerr opened the enveloped before witnesses. It was made public Monday night.

The letter read:

"It was a cold and windy day, the right field bleachers were crowded with people in overcoats and wrapped in blankets, the ball was a line drive headed for the bleachers towards right center, I turned slightly to my right and had the ball in view all the way, going at top speed and about 15 feet from bleachers (sic) jumped as high as I could and back handed and the ball hit the center of pocket in glove (I had a death grip on it). I hit the ground about five feet from a barrier about four feet high in front of bleachers with all my brakes on but couldn't stop so I tried to jump it to land in the crowd but my feet hit the barrier about a foot from top and I toppled over on my stomach into first row of bleachers, I hit my adams apple on something which sort of knocked me out for a few seconds but (Earl) McNeeley arrived about that time and grabbed me by the shirt and pulled me out, I remember trotting back towards the infield still carrying the ball for about halfway and then tossed it towards the pitchers mound. (How I have wished many times I had kept it.) At no time did I lose possession of the ball."

The Hall of Fame said direct testimony was provided recently backing Rice's claim.

Victor M. Birely, a Washington broker who saw the play, said: "The railing for the extra seats was higher than his knee and, as he was running and put up his glove, the ball shined in his glove like a star, when he hit the barrier and he did not go down real fast, the ball showed for a long time. If he dropped it it didn't matter, he held the ball long enough to make it legal, but he didn't."

Rice never said during his lifetime whether he had caught the ball. Kenesaw M. Landis, then baseball commissioner, got Rice's standard reply: "The umpire called him out."

Landis advised Sam to leave it that way. Rice refused a magazine offer for the true story saying, "The secret is more fun."

Rice, whose 12 hits topped other batters in the series, played eight more years with the Senators and in another World Series, finishing his career at 44 with Cleveland, just 13 hits shy of the 3,000 mark.

Bo Schembechler wants rule change

ANN ARBOR, Mich. (UPI) — Michigan Coach Bo Schembechler is tired of the agreement which annually sends one Big Ten and one Pacific Eight team to the Rose Bowl and the rest home to the wash bowl.

Not that the coach of the second-rated Wolverines is preparing any alibis or laments for his team's Nov. 23 clash with top-rated Ohio State —he doesn't think that way.

But Schembechler believes the rise of the Big Ten, and it's further growth, depend on a change in the rule.

"There is a strong sentiment, not only at Michigan but throughout the Big Ten, for permitting other teams to go to other bowls," the Michigan coach said Monday at his press luncheon.

"The fear of losing the Rose Bowl pact is a lot of malarky," he said. "I don't think that's true any more.

"I'm not just concerned with the top two teams, either," he said, not specifically mentioning his own team and the one Woody Hayes coaches.

"A third place team with a 9-2 record should go," Schembecher said. "It would be a great boost for the programs of all the schools in our conference."

It is true that ever since Schembechler came to Michigan, for the 1969 season, the Wolverines and Buckeyes have won or shared the Big Ten title.

But the whole conference, Schembechler said, is on the rise and the days of titles and roses for only the Buckeyes and Wolves may be just about over.

The third place team in the Big Ten, Michigan State, is only a game and a half behind the co-leaders at this relatively late stage in the season and until at least after Saturday's game between the Spartans and Buckeyes, there is a possibility that someone other than Michigan or Ohio State could win or share the title for the first time since Indiana in 1967.

Big Ten teams also posted their best record against outside competition (16-13-1) in 10 years this season.

"Name me a better conference than ours from top to bottom," Schembechler said. "The offenses today are so good, we're having a hard time keeping teams off the board. The equalization of grants (in aid) has helped us, too. We've got some good football players in this league."

Most of the talent is at Ohio State and Michigan, but Schembechler said the other eight schools are catching up —too fast.

"They may be up and down, but they can be pretty good on occasion," he said.

Michigan faces one of them, Illinois, this Saturday.

Orange Bowl seeks rematch

MIAMI (UPI) — The Orange Bowl Committee has sent "strong feelers" to Notre Dame and Alabama to participate in the post-season football classic here New Year's night.

The action was confirmed Monday night by Frank Rentz, president of the Orange Bowl Committee. He said, "We have a policy that we try to get the highest rated teams. I feel they would come if invited," Rentz said.

Leaks will start at FB for Texas

AUSTIN, Tex., (UPI)—All-America Roosevelt Leaks of Texas, steadily recovering from knee surgery last spring, starts at fullback Saturday in place of freshman sensation Earl Campbell.

"He is getting better and better each week and he is near to the old Roosevelt," Coach Darrell Royal said Monday. "I feel this is something he's earned, and it's not a put down to Earl Campbell. Though his experience and his effort, he has earned it."

Leaks was not expected to play this season because of the spring practice injury. He missed the season opener but has played in all other games. Royal said Leaks' attitude was excellent and he wanted him to start against Baylor Saturday at Waco.

"Let me also say this about him," Royal said. "For a guy to come in, having been All America and third in the Heisman voting and faced what he has had to, he has had an outstanding attitude and he's been a team man."

Gibson's days appear numbered

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (UPI) — Vince Gibson's days as head coach at Kansas State appear numbered. Like three, for instance.

That's how many games the Wildcats have left.

Gibson, who brought up the subject on his own television show a couple of weeks ago, now is saying nothing on the matter.

"I said I'll comment on that at the end of the season," he said Monday.

Gibson, whose team has lost five straight after a 3-0 start, is in his eighth season at Kansas State. He has another year to go on a verbal contract and has been supported by athletic director Ernie Barrett.

The inability to field a winning team, no doubt, has plummeted Gibson to personal depths of despair this season.

His own optimism and enthusiasm, always a trademark, has reached an all-time low.

"Amen," he said. "It sure has. I thought Saturday we were about as good a football team as Missouri. And the amazing thing is that after the game, I thought we should have been."

Missouri administered a 52-15 whipping, scoring 28 points in the fourth quarter.

"That was the first time this year that we just didn't hit," said Gibson. "We got after 'em pretty good in the first half, but in the second half we didn't hit a lick. We got blown out in the fourth quarter and that's the first time this year that weve let down like that."

Rumors that Gibson will not be back in 1975 have been circulating since the Wildcats' 23-18 loss at Iowa State Oct. 19. That loss came on the heels of a 21-16 defeat by Mississippi State and a 20-14 loss to archrival Kansas and was followed by a 63-0 shellacking by Oklahoma and last week's drubbing by Missouri.

Gibson said he doesn't know if the constant speculation has affected his team, adding, "The thing that I know has affected us is losing three close football games."

Kansas State's chance of reversing the losing trend aren't good. The Wildcats close the season with Oklahoma State, Nebraska and Colorado.

Gibson has enjoyed only one winning season in his seven previous years at Kansas State. That was a 6-5 record in 1970 when Lynn Dickey was a senior. Since then, Kansas State has been 5-6, 3-8 and 5-6.

Gabriel not at fault

PHILADELPHIA (UPI) — Coach Mike McCormack, shaken by the 27-0 wipeout of Philadelphia by Pittsburgh Sunday, critized the Eagles Monday for their poor play and stressed how well the Steelers performed.

"This was our worst game, offensively and defensively, in two years," McCormack said.

"It was not really what they were doing to us. It was simply what we were doing to ourselves —not making any plays, no execution in the passing game, and when we did something well, we dropped the ball.

"I am not trying to take anything away from the Steelers," he said. "They played good football, excellent football. They executed extremely well and did not make a mistake. They beat us soundly."

McCormack said "we were enjoying our winning season (4-1 before dropping the last three games) but enjoying it before we really accomplished anything."

He said the Steelers covered receivers Harold Carmichael and Charles Young and noted that when quarterback Roman Gabriel hit Carmichael on the numbers the rangy wide receiver dropped the ball.

"Gabe was rushed and sacked. He didn't have time to read thoroughly what was in front," McCormack said. "We needed a little more time, at least another tenth of a second. Gabriel wasn't getting it. We had Don Zimmerman open four times and didn't go to him."

Gabriel was manhandled by the Steelers' front four before he was lifted in the third period and had the bruised ribs to show for it. He underwent an x-ray examination of the rib area Monday morning.

The loss jolted the Eagles' chances for a wild card spot in the playoffs.

"If we can, we must earn the support of our fans again," McCormack said. "We haven't done anything the past two weeks to restore it.

"This game is a game of mistakes. When you don't make them, you win."

Cheetahs get two seconds

The Southern California Cheetahs grabbed two second place team titles and one third place over the weekend at the District Championships in Huntington Beach.

Shelly Waters led the Cheetahs to a second place in the 12-13 age group with her fourth place finish in 11:53 over the two-mile course. She was followed by teammates Diane Esslinger (7th, 12:00), Barney Carral (9th, 12:09) Hedy Hafen (15th, 12:27), and Charm Bishop (17th, 12:33).

Danielle Mojica led her Cheetah teammates to a third-place finish in the 10-11 division with a fourth-place finish in 9:43 on the 1½-mile course. Jane Wintermute finished 10th in 9:58 for the Cheetahs.

Becky Wolfinbarger finished third to lead the 14-17 age group to a third place, being clocked at 15:31 for 2½ miles. Carol Flournoy was second for the Cheetahs with his 11th place finish in 16:10.

The Cheetahs will next compete in the state meet in La Jolla this Sunday.

Poly hosts CCAA water polo title games, Nov. 15-16

Cal Poly's water polo team, winners of six straight contests, will host the California Collegiate Athletic Association conference championship competition Nov. 15 and 16.

The Broncos are coached by Stan Jackson.

Jackson, who feels this year's squad is one of the best he has ever had at Poly, is looking toward a possible berth in the NCAA championships in nearby Long Beach. "If we keep playing the way we are now and pull off a few more upsets as well as win our conference I think we'll have a shot at the playoffs," he said.

The CCAA championships at the Poly pool, with no admission charged for spectators, will feature five games on Friday (Nov. 15) and five games on Saturday (Nov. 16).

According to Bryant

'Bama is 'crippled'

By United Press International

Alabama is going Tiger hunting on crutches Saturday.

At least, that's the way Coach Bear Bryant seems to view his team's meeting with Louisiana State in Birmingham.

"We're badly crippled," said Bryant at Monday's practice session. "This is one of the biggest games we'll ever play for a lot of reasons and if we don't have a week of dedicated preparation, we'll get beat.'

Coach Charlie McClendon also spoke of dedication at LSU, where 15 fumbles in seven games have contributed greatly to the Tigers' 3-3-1 record.

"We will have to dedicate ourselves to playing an error-free game against Alabama," said McClendon. "They once again have an excellent ball club as their perfect record indicates."

Second-ranked Alabama is 8-0 and apparently on its way to another Southeastern Conference football championship.

Seventh-ranked Florida began preparing for another rugged task after the Gators' upset of Auburn — meeting rugged Georgia in Jacksonville Saturday.

Coach Steve Sloan, whose Vanderbilt team handed Florida its only loss while being outgunned 38-31 by Georgia, predicts a close game that "could be decided by a break."

Vanderbilt takes on Kentucky Saturday and Sloan had the Commodores concentrating on kicking in Monday's drills.

Ninth-ranked Auburn battles Mississippi State Saturday at Jackson and Coach Shug Jordan gave his Tigers a "needed review of fundamentals."

Mississippi State worked outside in sweat clothes for 50 minutes Monday before a shower sent them indoors to watch films of Auburn.

Tennessee Coach Bill Battle warned the Vols that Memphis State is "one of the most explosive teams Tennessee will face all year." Florida State's Darrell Mudra said he may alternate three quarterbacks against Miami Friday night.

Tulane was warned by Coach Bennie Ellender to keep a sharp eye on Boston College's tricky veer offense.

Insights on campus today

When I was a youngster, I found myself being continually confounded when I went to someone whom I respected as an expert in his field in search of some answers.

Almost invariably I would leave the presence of that learned one with something I hadn't bargained for — more questions than answers.

Now, after 32 years of working with students, parents, teachters, legislators, and community organizations, I think I have a better understanding of the questions-answers phenomenon. Here are a few of the questions I'm asked most:

Should I go to college? Even if I don't know what I want to do, or want to be?

What College? Public or private? Liberal Arts or professional? Career-oriented or general education?

What does a degree really mean today? Is it still a ticket to a better job?

Does college develop deeper and more meaningful life values and a basis for more rational and humane decision-making?

Or does it create doubts and anxieties regarding traditional values, morality and life styles?

And here's one of my favorites. — Should I waste my money sending my kid to college when he's already "blown it" in high school?

In attempting to help students and parents find the answers to these and other equally sticky questions, I've developed a set of my own. Similarly, these are to be considered not by the academicians, but by the consumer — students, parents and our society in general.

Is it not time to junk the old assumption that everything to be learned needs to be "taught?"

Is there not something ridiculous about a college attempting to cover all the accumulated knowledge and information about the world in a catalogue of courses?

What is the essential difference between training and education and its implications for teaching and learning?

Is not compulsory school attendance, even at the secondary level, an outmoded, outdated, counter-productive idea?

And one of the neatest questions of all — What constitutes an educated man and what difference does college make toward that end?

So questions tend to beget questions. And answers tend to beget controversy. Perhaps that is why I am known in some circles as an inspirational innovator, in others as a controversial iconoclast and in still others by terminology not suitable for public print.

It will be my mission in this column, as it has been in my daily pursuits, to address myself to these questions. I would hope to be helpful to the reader in making the educational decisions which inevitably present themselves.

And if in the process we should flush out a straw man or two, find an Achilles heel here and there and stumble over some random featherbedding, we shall try not to act surprised.

Private investigator files $60,000 civil damages suit

Frank Petronzio, an Upland private investigator and part-time bodyguard, has filed a $60,000 civil suit with the West Valley Superior Court for alleged malicious prosecution and abuse of process by Asst. Dist. Atty. Jim Cramer, an Ontario consumer affairs agent and others.

Petronzio last week filed the suit naming Cramer, Gordon Bishop, Ontario consumer affairs agent, Joe Canty chief deputy district attorney, West End District Attorney's Office, Nathan Estrin and 11 unnamed persons, as plaintiffs.

Petronzio in his suit alleges that the plaintiffs conspised in a malicious prosecution and an abuse of process that led to his arrest in April 1973 on suspicion of operating as a private detective without a license.

Petronzio claims that the charge was withdrawn at a later date, after he produced evidence that he was an agent of a licensed private detective agency, but his arrest cost him more than six months of work and $1,500 in attorney's fees. Petronzio said that the local police departments, the district attorney's office and other law enforcement agencies had knowledge of his working as a private detective several years prior to his arrest on the charge.

Petronzio said, "I intend to ask for a grand jury investigation and an investigation by the Attorney General's Office of the assistant district attorney, and the West Valley District Attorney's Office." Petronzio said he believed he had enough evidence to warrant a grand jury investigation as well as an investigation by the California Attorney General's Office.

Petronzio further claimed that since the charge was withdrawn by the District Attorney's Office he has been the subject of "undue harrassment" by local police on the request of Cramer.

Canty said "It's one of the most ridiculous suits I've ever seen filed." Canty said the information on the suit has been turned over to the San Bernardino County Counsel. Office for review.

Canty explained that the government code does not permit an individual to seek damages for such alleged actions. He said under section 821.6 of the government code, a "public employe is not liable for injury caused by his instituting any judicial or administrative action in the scope of his duties." Canty said the code has another section that protects public employes from liability "even if he acts maliciously or without probably cause."

Canty denied any direct knowledge of the allegations filed by Petronzio.

Canty said, in his opinion, "the suit was filed for other reasons than for personal injury."

21 vehicles damaged; loss set at $50,000

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — More than $50,000 damage was done to 21 city-owned vehicles this weekend when vandals broke into a city Parks and Recreation Department service yard in Griffith Park, police said today.

One police officer said the scene of the vandalism looked like "the aftermath of a destruction derby." A park department spokesman said the vehicles were inoperable.

Authorities said the vandals apparently climbed a chain link fence to get into the facility, and then started the vehicles, which included half-ton trucks which they drove around, banging into trees, power poles and fences.

The damage was discovered by a city employe returning to the yard from an assignment.

Solon scores Ford's choice of advisers

LAS VEGAS (UPI) — Sen. William Proxmire, D-Wis., said Tuesday that President Ford had failed to take aggressive action to force Big Business to roll back prices because of poor economic advisers.

The Wisconsin Democrat, here to lecture at the University of Nevada, Las Vegas, told a news conference that Alan Greenspan was the wrong man to be chairman of the Council of Economic Advisers.

"His nomination was incredible," Proxmire said. "Here is a man nominated by former President Nixon who Ford said he wanted.

"A man who is opposed to the progressive income tax, opposed to enforcement of antitrust laws and would like to see them abolished, opposed to consumer protection, it is like somebody out of the 16th Century.

"That kind of attitude will be very harmful to our country if he persists in office, I would hope that he would leave office."

Proxmire, vice chairman of the Joint Economic Committee, said inflation had resulted from price administration, big government spending and waste, and increased profit margins by Big Business. He singled out the oil, chemical, nonferous metals and steel industries as being responsible for two thirds of the increases in prices.

Indians sell bonds to back bid for land

SPOKANE, Wash. (UPI) — The tiny Kootenai Indian tribe has begun to sell "war bonds" to finance its campaign to gain back ancestral land from the United States.

Bonds being sold by the Northern Idaho tribe at Spokane's Expo 74 cost $1 and picture two teepees, headfeathers, mountain scenery and a "Kootenai Nation" banner. They are about the size of a place mat.

A motto decorated with three Buffalo heads reads "Justice, Balance and Liberty," and contains a declaration of war with the U.S.

The tribe, which set up informational booths in September on roads leading to Bonner's Ferry, Idaho, was recently given a 12.5-acre reservation by the government. The tribe is asking for 128,000 acres and $2.5 million in back payments as retribution for the 1.6 million acres of timber and range land seized by the government more than a century ago.

Britain's Cox wins Dewar Cup

CARDIFF, Wales (UPI) — Mark Cox, Britain's second-ranked player, scored a 6-4, 1-6, 6-0 victory over Yugoslav Davis Cup player Zeljko Franulovic Saturday to earn the $840 first prize in the Dewar Cup Indoor tennis tournament.

The match lasted 75 minutes with Cox just having the edge in the opening set and Franulovic running away with the second to draw even.

Cox, who has spent the last few months playing World Team Tennis and coaching in Vancouver, recovered his composure to win the deciding set in convincing fashion.

Chamber music quartet to perform at Scripps

The Quartetto Esterhazy of Amsterdam, on its First American tour, will present a concert in Balch Auditorium, Scripps College, at 8:15 p.m. Friday. Admission is free.

Formed by four Amsterdam musicians who are interested in 17th and 18th century music, the Quartetto Esterhazy has restored the authentic string quarter style by using instruments with unmodified fingerboards, lower bridges, gut strings and original bows. Such instruments were used during the time of Haydn and Mozart.

The quartet is named for the birthplace of the classical string quartet — the Esterhazy family estate where Haydn perfected the string quartet form. The Quartetto Esterhazy has recorded various Haydn quartets and is recording the complete Mozart quartets.

Members are violinists Jaap Schroeder and Alda Stuurop; violist Wiel Peeters and cellist Wouter Moller.

For their performance at Scripps, they will play Luigi Boccherini's Quartet in C Minor; Haydn's Quartet in D Major, and Mozart's Quartet in C Major.

'Cat on a Hot Tin Roof'

Tennessee Williams drama scheduled at Cal Poly

The Cal Poly theater arts department will present Tennessee Williams' "Cat on a Hot Tin Roof" in the university theater at 8 p.m. Friday and Saturday and Nov. 14-16.

Members of the cast are Monte Van Vleet, Big Daddy; Robin Marie LaValley, Maggie; Kathleen Meadows, Big Mama; Courtney Johnstone, servant; Leon Fricke, Dr. Baugh; Paul E. Oakes, Reverend; Robin Clark, Mae, Barry Moore, Brick, and William Dunn, Cooper.

Tickets are $2 general admission, $1.50 for students.

The Cal Poly production is directed by Ralpy C. McCormic, professor of drama, and designed by Michael Devine, lecturer in drama.

Once criticized for its frank language, violent action and unorthodox story, "Cat" is an exciting portrait of marriage, and is thought by many critics to be Williams' most positive play and his least sentimentalized picture of human relationships.

The play is set on the southern plantation owned by Big Daddy Pollitt, a role made famous by Burl Ives in his Broadway debut. The Pollitt family is gathered to celebrate Big Daddy's birthday, unaware that he is dying. The struggle over who shall inherit the estate provides the intense dramatic action.

Heightening the excitement are the desperate tensions between Maggie the Cat and her husband, Brick, whose marriage has collapsed because Brick is brooding over a friend's death and over his wife's accusation that unnatural affection existed between the two. Elizabeth Taylor and Paul Newman starred in the film, which bowed to the censorship of the times and ignored the problems of homosexuality which dominated the stage production.

Comic-drama opens tonight at Hartford

Dale Wasserman's comedy-drama, "One Flew over the Cuckoo's Nest," opens at the Huntington Hartford Theater, Hollywood, at 8:30 tonight.

The presentation stars William Devane in the pivotal role of Randall P. McMurphy and Salome Jens as his adversary, Nurse Ratched. Costarring with Devane and Miss Jens is Rockne Tarkington, in the role of the Indian, Chief Bromden. Featured performers are John Savage, Val Bisoglio, Delos V. Smith, Jr., Mel Haynes, Rik Colitti and Norman Rice.

Under the direction of Harvey Medlinsky, the production is scheduled to run through Dec. 8. Tickets are available at the Hartford box office, all Mutual and Liberty ticket agencies and Wallich's Music City stores.

Wall Street Chatter

NEW YORK (UPI) — "While it may be somewhat early to say for sure, it would appear that the recent market low around 573 could turn out to be an important bottom," says Blyth Eastman Dillon & Co.

Following the rapid runup from that low point, the market is in a retracement pattern which could pull the Dow Jones industrials back into the 630 area or even further into the 590 to 600 region, the firm continues. "With signs money and credit will be more readily available in coming months, it is anticipated that the pullback is a technical correction to the recent runup and as such should be used as a buying opportunity," it adds.

The market is in the midst of an intermediate-trend reversal following its collapse to the October 4 low, according to Abraham & Co. Technical factors suggest "the reversal can be successfully completed and support an eventual further recovery toward or into the upper 700's of the Dow Jones Industrial average," the firm says.

The ordinary bricks that a bricklayer uses to build a brick house are usually made from clay that is baked in an oven.

To make bricks, the brickmakers grind the clay and mix it with water. Some sand is added, too.

A brickmaking machine pushes the soft clay through a hole to form a thick ribbon of clay.

Another machine, called a "brick cutter," cuts the clay ribbon into brick shapes, in much the same way you'd cut a bar of cheese.

When the cut bricks have dried, the brickmakers stack them in a big oven called a "kiln."

In the kiln the bricks are "fired," or baked. This makes them hard and strong, and better able to withstand dampness.

In construction, the bricklayer arranges the bricks so that they lap over each other, to make the wall strong.

He uses a special kind of cement called "mortar" to hold the bricks together. The mortar also makes the wall watertight.

A radio, camera, globe or other fine prize will be awarded to the first youngster sending in a question used here. Send your question and your age to Johnny Wonder, (c/o this newspaper), Box 1335 (DA), Santa Cruz, CA 95061.
